IN DEDICATION

Nineteen fifty-five dedicates its INDEX to Professor Lawrence Dickinson. This dedication is a recognition of his long service in the interest of the Academic Activities program of the University. It is an appreciation of his friendly and helpful relationship with generations of students working on the INDEX, Collegian, and other similar organizations.

It all started back in the 1920s when Professor Dickinson began to keep the financial records for the Academic Activities Board. He took great pride in this work and the efficiency of his office. He enjoyed his contacts with student managers. They, in turn, liked him and profited by his sound business judgment and advice. The program prospered and expanded to the extent that last year he became the financial adviser for all Recognized Student Organizations, over one hundred in number.

While Professor Dickinson was expanding this service, he was pioneering in another field—that of fine turf management. After his graduation from the University in 1910 he served as Superintendent of Grounds. This work naturally led him to the problems of turf management, especially those relating to lawn and golf course maintenance. In 1927 he organized a ten weeks Greenskeepers course, the first of its kind. This has become the outstanding Golf Grounds Management Course in the country and Professor Dickinson the leading authority in the teaching of Golf Course Maintenance. His students have been drawn from the whole United States and foreign countries. In recognition of his outstanding contribution in this field the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America on the 25th anniversary of the starting of this program honored him with a certificate of commendation and a very substantial gift of money.

Loyal alumnus, outstanding teacher, and organizer in a new field of education, ardent champion of students and student organizations, this is the man 1955 honors with this INDEX dedication.

YEAR IN REVIEW

A special honor

In this time of political strife and uncertainty one year can mean the difference between war and peace, families living together in normal contentment or spread throughout the universe; the devotion of mankind to cultural improvements and the betterment of the human race or the production of materials to be used specifically for killing and devastation. Democratic institutions must be prepared to stand the test.

Accordingly, America is being called upon today to protect her citizens who, all over the globe, are being arrested without cause as "international enemies" and spies. The difficulties which America faces today are problems of great proportions. Incidents concerning the loss of planes which have crossed the communist zone and have been shot down are still being reported. Should America go to war to protect her citizens abroad? Only recently thirteen Americans were seized by a foreign power and sentenced to imprisonment.

Fear of Communism is widespread, resulting in the creation of a campaign such as that waged by Senator McCarthy, faced with the disapproval of fellow senators. Scientists find little time to create uses for atomic material as a peacetime benefit: attention is turned to bigger and better bombs, rocket-ships, and atom-propelled submarines.

At times the college-campus seems far removed from these world-shaking events; and yet, upon the graduation of thousands from universities and colleges this year, America will look to them as future leaders. Therefore no year-in-review could possibly be complete without the realization that the era ahead of us is a treacherous one, calling for judicious decision and help from this year's college graduate.

"Let me go, Lover!"

"Come back, Shame!"

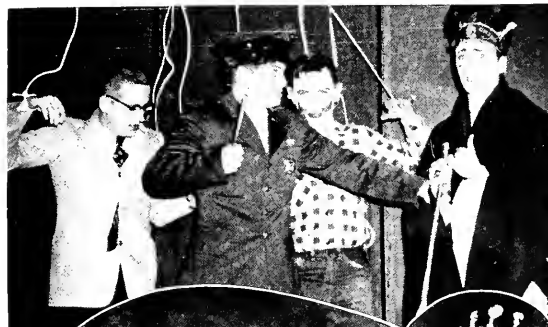

"Dancing in the Dark"

From this international panorama, the eye focuses on the college campus, and specifically to the month of "show-ers." Almost in entire contrast to the general moroseness of the world outside the campus, students seem to be in one constant whirlwind of good times and entertainment.

All of us will remember the impressive convocation in which Rodgers and Hammerstein received their degrees from Governor Herter as Doctors of Humane Letters. The ceremony was coupled with the presentation of a delightful musical interlude consisting of pieces composed by these famous artists.

Meanwhile the fraternities and sororities were joining hands to present the main social event on campus during this month — Greek Week. Many were delightfully surprised with the fraternity skits which proved to the campus at large that they could present entertainment at a higher level than had been demonstrated in the past. The fraternity sing was excellent, as usual, and top honors were received by Sig Ep. The sorority sing provided an evening of enjoyment for all those who didn't participate and an evening of tension for all those who did. The theme this year was songs of different lands and the honors were given to Pi Phi. Ralph Flanagan was called upon to entertain at the traditional Greek

QUEEN OF THE GREEKS

Risé Rises

Ball, graced by the lovely Shirley Tuttle who reigned as Queen.

The University of Massachusetts Concert Association concluded its typically fine season with a suitable climax as Risé Stevens entertained a capacity audience in the Cage.

A new tradition was started on campus as the University held its First International Weekend. Because of its success, future years will see other enlightening International Weekends. Another in the line of firsts, though perhaps not as educational, was the Ugly Man Contest, exercising the talents of all make-up artists, which seemed to have an unlimited line of candidates including our own Dean Hopkins.

Scholastic honors were given to the University this month when twenty college seniors were nominated to "Who's Who in American Colleges," and Phi Kappa Phi elected 21 members. However, the University's reputation for both beauty and brains was upheld as Blossom Cutler received a nomination for College Queen of America.

Far from being a rainy month, April beamed so that most co-eds sported sunburns as the approach of "mass-grass," or Spring Day, came upon the campus. The traditional hilarity and joy were evident throughout the day, and April withdrew on a happy note.

You guessed — a guest

The Maypole, symbolic of May all over the world, was symbolic, also, for campus activity during the only three-letter month of the year. It was almost as if all of us had stored up all of our energy which suddenly came bubbling out, culminating in a whirlpool of activity as campusites whirled around in high spirits and gala gaiety.

Ordinarily, the typical May scene would have opened on boys and girls clustered around the library lawn, "grassing" near the college pond, or walking aimlessly, thirsty for the warm and glorious sunshine. But this year the campus appeared in red, blue and yellow slickers and boots. Dripping wet, they poured into the C-store, into the library, into Memorial Hall, wishing in vain that April swimming was back again. The faithless sun left for a short vacation, stopping off every once in a while to taunt those who used all of their will power to remain in class. Those few sunny days proved to be the test for teachers, who struggled to make their lectures more inviting than the warm yellow glow.

The key-words for the month of May seemed to be fun, finals and future. Social activities seemed to be exceptionally fine and took away some of the fears of finals coming soon — too soon. Plans were frantically being made for the high event of graduation as seniors watched wistfully their very last college month fly by.

As was the custom, Parents Weekend

Hup, Tup, Thrup, Phup

suddenly arrived when the plans which had been carefully laid finally materialized. Multitudes of mothers and fathers arrived on campus to join the weekend festivities. The campus really outdid itself for those faithful souls who pay the bills. Fraternities and sororities feted their parents with dinners, teas, skits and open houses. The Roister Doister Play "Ah Wilderness" provided many with successful entertainment. The Naiads outdid themselves in superb style, with a difficult and lovely water ballet. Sunday came quickly and the parents scattered back to their home-towns, well satisfied with a well-organized weekend.

Romance floated over Old Chapel for May was truly the month of formals, beautiful gowns and glamorous girls. The fraternities had their yearly dances, and soft lights and beautiful music captured many hearts.

Humor really reached its climax, and suddenly the long-awaited plans for a campus humor magazine received official approval from the Senate which quickly voted the idea into reality by granting the new publication an appropriation for $500.00, much to the satisfaction of Barry Bunshoft and Dave Ganz who had worked hard to see this dream become a working reality. Make way for laughter-at-large!

Suddenly the humor, the fun, the frolic died out, and solemnity appeared on the scene. The news resounded through college buildings as President Van Meter announced his retirement. For eight years he had served as President of the University and the news was shocking and saddening at the same time.

Accordingly, the college waited with

bated breath to hear who would take over his office. The dramatic announcement was made at the first University Honors Convocation ever to be held on this campus. At this impressive meeting, attended en masse by the University, Jean Paul Mather announced his appointment to become the fourteenth president of the University of Massachusetts. The young former Provost was greeted with a round of applause, as the students recognized in him an ally, a liberal thinker whom, they felt, would help to correct many of the out-moded practices which still lingered. This Honor Convocation proved so successful that another worthwhile tradition was established. Awards were given to those students who had spent a great deal of time and effort and who had proved outstanding in their different organizations. During the course of the evening, members of Scrolls, Maroon Key (the two Sophomore Honor Societies) Isogon and Adelpia (the two Senior Honor Societies) were tapped. The Senior girls decked out in their caps and gowns marched to the College Pond followed by the students who attended the convocation. The college pond was alight with the reflection of candles slipping through the water to the accompaniment of music and feminine voices, to the juniors waiting on the other shore.

And after convocation, folks, we watch the Naiads drown

Toward the middle of the month the annual ROTC review was scheduled. Carol Bruinisman, this year's Honorary Colonel, was present at the exercises, looking strangely different from any other colonel that the military had on the field. With her presence, the neat review certainly added a lovely note.

Suddenly the future reared its head, becoming all-important as plans were made for commencement. The students who had worked for four years for the exciting culmination of their dreams waited anxiously for Their Week to begin. The future held for them a senior banquet, a senior picnic, the soph-senior hop, the baccalaureate, and the graduation exercise itself. The speaker secured to speak at the commencement services was Dr. Leonard Carmichael, the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

However, almost before anyone could enjoy all these happy events, the Plague was upon them. A blanket of silence fell over the campus. The girls put on their Bermudas and their glasses; the campus settled down for a week and a half of studying. "Oh, May, whither didst thou flee?"

JUNE

"The things we did"

last summer . . .

SEPTEMBER

A furious wind carried the sound of creaking trunks, diesel engines, the put-put of old jalopies and the purring of new motors, sniffles from freshman mothers, and general confusion. Football players were once more given exercise as they carried trunks and dufflebags to the vacant rooms.

The carefree summer days had vanished. The tours were over, the camp season was through, the summer jobs had ended. Moonlit nights along the beach, swimming in fresh water ponds, basking in the warm sun, dancing, laughter, all of these were just a memory. With mixed emotions we watched the silent walls of the University enfold the students for another year of campus life.

The carefully laid plans for Freshman Week were waiting for the novices. Freshmen boys resigned themselves to beanies, and freshmen girls donned hats and bibs. Jumping over numbers provided freshmen with exercise carefully supervised by Scrolls and Maroon Key members. The freshman square dance, the co-ed play day, a hubbub of other events oriented our new friends to campus life.

Then the much dreaded day came round. We knew it; we fought it; we had to face it. Armed with a good night's sleep and a host of convincing alibis we marched bravely into the cage for (dare we say it?) REGISTRATION. Lines, lines, and more lines of suffering humanity greeted our stalwart gaze. We received our little pink cards and courageously plunged into the fray. There was the enemy, seated behind wooden desks. The problem lay before us. We must get our little white cards to the opposition without letting them realize it. A beautiful mass of confusion ended as we left, disgruntled, with classes from eight to four. Adelpia and Isogon tried to placate us with a registration dance on an enlarged cage floor.

Before we had been on campus for more than a week we discovered that sleeping quarters had become a little tight. Two-hundred and twenty more sophomores returned to the campus than in any other class previous to it. The dorms were not crowded, they were mobbed.

Even the face of the campus had changed somewhat. Draper, the familiar dining hall that had once welcomed hundreds of starving students, now was open for business and we mean business, as it was turned over to the Business Administration department. The only sad feature was the continued renovation of Bowker auditorium.

And so, once more we set out, books in hand for classes and uphill trudges, very confident that we could make the walk from the engineering annex to the math building in ten minutes.

The official start of the year came with the opening convocation held at the cage. The guest speaker talked on "Thousands of Lost Golf Balls" to celebrate Phi Kappa Phi's fiftieth year.

Here's mud in your eye, Charlie!

The football season made its appearance with visiting A.I.C. The rally committee worked harder than ever to assure a successful turnout, and their work was gratified by a huge turnout at which President Mather appeared. The rally was followed by a dance sponsored by Adelpia and Isongon and we turned from the blazing bonfire to an eventful dance. On the day of the game the freshmen appeared in full force via a parade to the game. Half-time was considerably enlightened by the snappy drill team in new uniforms. This group of well-timed coeds put on a top half-time show. Even the cheerleaders were decked in new array and provided a spirited and pretty background to this, our first game of the year. Our spirit was well-founded, as the Redmen tramped to victory.

That evening the inter-dorm sing was held. All honors in the skits and the sing were copped by the new dorm, providing that, after all, there really is "Nothing Like a Dame." Finally, as the campus waited with bated breath, the new dorm was given a name—Arnold House, a fitting climax to a hard-working and spirited group of freshmen.

And so, September waved goodbye. Swiftly she slid away, condoning the kilt skirts that made their last appearance, and providing us with good weather to laugh and chat with friends that we had not seen for three months. In her two crowded weeks, friendly September provided us with a full month's activity.

The word that could perhaps characterize the month of October most appropriately is "spirit." It was this force that propelled scholastic and social activities and strengthened the bond of the students to their University.

Who could forget the magnificent motorcade that started at our campus and, in spirited unison, drove triumphantly to Harvard. Signs and posters placed in conspicuous spots graced the route. Even the administration cooperated to permit this event to take place by calling off Saturday classes. "Fight fiercely, fellows" was the taunt on everybody's lips as the campus felt that the University at last had become a BIG school. Boston was numbed by the shock of the victory that crushed Harvard. The football team had felt the thirst of our unquenchable spirit.

But perhaps the largest event of the football year was home-coming weekend. An active program was scheduled for the alumni, as the University turned out to welcome past graduates. On Friday night the traditional float parade was held with all the fraternities, sororities and dormitories represented. The pep rally held after the float parade announced the winning floats. The judges, with an eye to cleanliness, picked soap-suds and insect spray for Kappa Kappa Gamma and Alpha Gamma Rho respectively. In addition, Blossom Cutler became the first Homecoming Queen in the history of the University. The evening was ended with a jazz concert and a dance. On Saturday the campus turned out to see the football game against UConn. A Homecoming win increased the general hilarity as the chapel bells summoned us to the college pond for the freshman rope pull. Fortunately for the freshmen who landed in the pond, it was a warm day.

The freshmen girls had a very busy month as they were introduced to the sororities through the conducted tours of Pan-Hellenic Council. And we might add that the sororities had a very busy month preparing for this event. Faculty teas were also scheduled, giving the Frosh an opportunity to become better acquainted with their professors and to air their views with faculty members.

During the month of October the traditional high-school day was held, and proved to be one of the most successful ever planned. The highlight of the month, however, occurred on October 21, as President Mather became the fourteenth President of the University at the inauguration ceremony held at the cage. He was invested with his office by Governor Herter; 139 representatives from colleges, universities, and scholastic groups throughout the country were present at this impressive ceremony. President Mather's speech dealt with the increasing college enrollment caused by an increase in population.

A fitting climax to the month of October was the first concert of the year presenting the Obenkirchen Children's Choir. Thirty-five hundred people attended and the concert was received very warmly.

We cannot say that October flew by. More likely it jumped or ran by, leaving the campus still panting and anxiously awaiting future events.

NOVEMBER

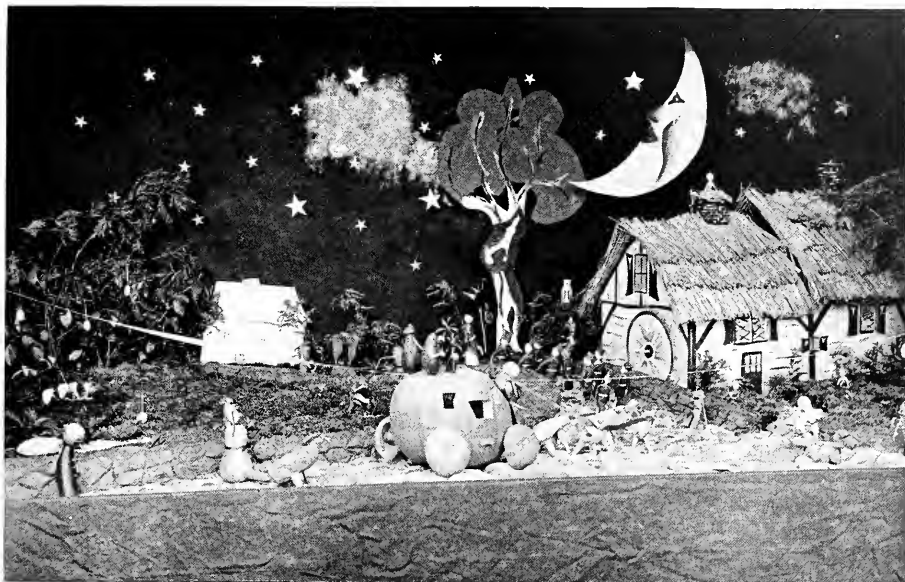

"Vanity, thy name is woman"

"My heart goes where the wild goose goes"

November came, that magical month. The smell of turkey reached quivering nostrils, the tang of cranberries could be tasted in the air. We knew that Thanksgiving was just around the corner and days of rest and relaxation were close at hand. Until then, the thoughts of snow, football, and Old Man Winter could keep us occupied.

November was the month of the Horticulture show, the spectacle that attracts so many people, from both on campus and off, to see the beautiful displays created in floral designs. The Queen chosen to reign over this event was Elaine Stewart, attended by Marilyn Votona and Beverly Giles. Three-hundred and fifty dollars was awarded in prizes and twenty-seven students received awards for their exhibitions. This, the 42nd event of its kind, lived up to the high standards that the Horticulture show has always held.

"Once upon a time..."

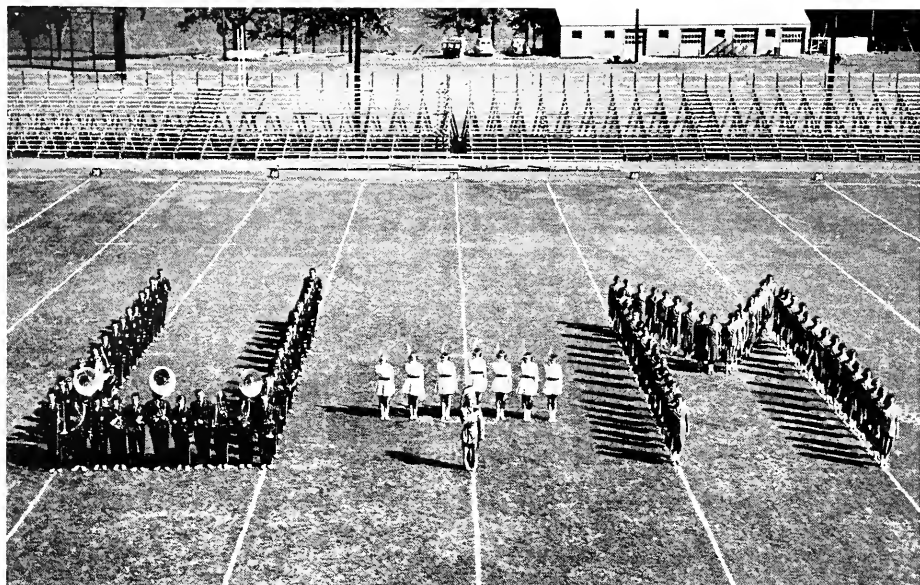

"Shake, rattle and roll"

In one sense, November was a military month. The area near Leach dormitory became a miniature battlefield. Also, a military review was held as Cadet Colonel Peter Worth reviewed the troops and Colonel Richard H. Smith received the legion of merit. Along the military lines, Camp Devens also received a snappy review of girls dressed in gray—our own drill team.

Another student concert was held, the star being Eleanor Steber of the Metropolitan Opera, appearing with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra. The Newman Chorus and the Symphony Singers appeared with her to add student participation in a melodious capacity.

Honors were also heaped upon us as 31 candidates were nominated for "Who's Who on American College Campuses."

However, there were certain grumblings heard on the campus. The Senate voted to improve the reputedly poor conditions at the Infirmary and the question of rumor versus fact remained to be solved. A great many of the grumblings were instigated by the students to correct some of the glaring faults which they felt existed within the student body themselves. As a result, a committee on discipline was appointed.

Suddenly, in the heat of all of this activity, vacation was here. Suitcases were hurriedly packed, ride signs went up furiously in the C-Store; a day of hubbub and clamor, and suddenly the campus was quiet. Empty buildings gazed lonesomely at one another as the wind whipped through the deserted campus.

Ball

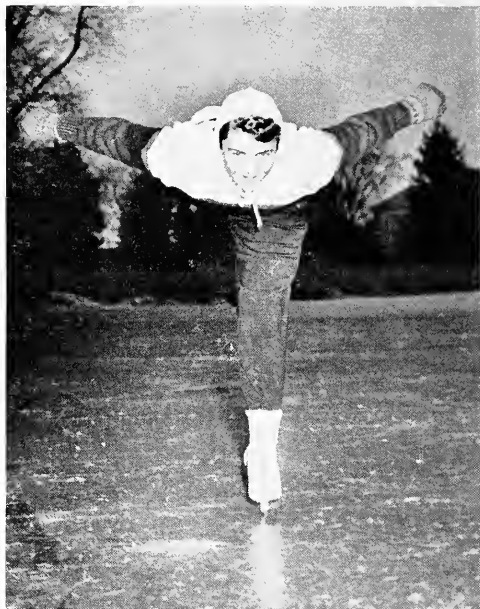

"Come back, little Sheba!"

Only twenty-four more shopping days until Christmas. . . . We started to save out nickels and dimes for the short shopping tours. Jukeboxes dreamt of a white Christmas and Eartha Kitt sang a sequel to Santa Baby.

But December was more than this. Fraternity rushing reached a finale. The new quality point system indicated that Freshmen boys had to have at least a 1.2 average in order to pledge. IFC proposed this motion; many houses sadly waved goodbye to the boys that almost, but not quite, made their required mark. Pledge Chapel saw lower quotas than ever before.

Publicity wise, the Boston Post honored us with a two-page spread. Blossom Cutler, the Homecoming queen, headed the magazine section.

The traditional Military Ball was held and Jerry Wald and his orchestra made us dance. The featured vocalist was Sunny Gale. Appearing from Bowdoin College, the Meddiebumpsters favored us with a few numbers. Of course, the crowning attraction was lovely Jane (Rex) Butler, honorary colonel.

However, perhaps the most important thing that occurred in Deember was the startling suspension of the Quarterly. This suspension of the students' magazine was based on the quality of the stories which had appeared in the aforesaid publication. Many students and faculty members backed this suspension, but others felt that this represented a challenge, on a small scale, to the Freedom of the Press. It was hoped that something would rapidly be done about the situation but, at the end of the month, the Quarterly remained suspended.

Suddenly, the first snow-storm and icy weather promoted good spirit and harmony as the thought of Christmas loomed near. The Christmas Vespers and Carole Sing initiated a week of caroling as clusters of boys and girls traveled through the cold evening to serenade the dorms, sororities, and fraternities. It became a familiar sight to see the faces peering from the window and warm and friendly comments passed from the serenaded to the serenaders. Hour exams could not blunt this amiability. The very joy that makes us wish that Christmas was all year 'round pervaded the campus.

"But baby, it's cold outside."

1955 was here. It was time for us to make those New Year's resolutions come true. We arrived on campus with finals leering at us from a not-too-safe distance.

The big event of the month was the Winter Carnival, sponsored by the Junior Class. The names of the candidates for the queen were soon published, and the lovely Terry Taupier reigned supreme. First, there was a "Mass Grass on Wheels" or in common English, a hay ride. For those who were athletically inclined, there was skating at the college pond and a hockey game with Amherst. Then, the crowning climax, the Winter Wonderland Ball, was held on Saturday night. Harry Marshard played for us as Cindy Lord crooned those lovely ballads. For the women-folks a fashion show was held on Sunday morning, and more skating for those who hadn't fallen in on Saturday.

On January 6th the concert association provided us with something a little bit out of the ordinary. Anna Russell was the star, and a crowd of 4000 attended. The concert provoked much laughter and was well-received.

Campus Varieties was also held in January. The girls' chorus, decked out

Winter

Carnival

Mind if I cut in?

in gowns, certainly added eye-appeal to the well-received show.

Preferential bidding was held for the frosh women and, with some amazement, sororities watched pledge quotas descend. Sorority turnouts were smaller than ever before in proportion to the class numbers which had increased. The time came for sororities to assert themselves on campus and make themselves known as an integral part of the campus life. Panhellenic Council, confronted with the unusual situation, has before it perhaps the strongest test of its ability.

Then the time came for all of us to rejoice. Lucky us, mid-semester examinations were here. For the upperclassmen they promised to be the test of the new marking system; for the underclassmen, a prayer that they would remain for another year. Registration preceded the fateful days and, just as we rescued ourselves from the horror of the cage, we were plunged into the depths of despair by the brief, but concise, two-hour quizzes. When our too-short vacation between semesters finally came, we went home in a daze, thankful that someone, somewhere, took pity on our miserable selves and transported us to the place of good food and rest.

FEBRUARY

Sorry, we ain't got none!

"... on the Mississippi mud."

February was a month in which the University paused for self-analyses. As a new semester was ushered in, we had a chance to look back on the serious issues with which we had been confronted in the previous six months.

President Mather spoke to the Senate and to the Board of Trustees on the state of the University. The crux of all of these speeches that the President made

FEBRUARY

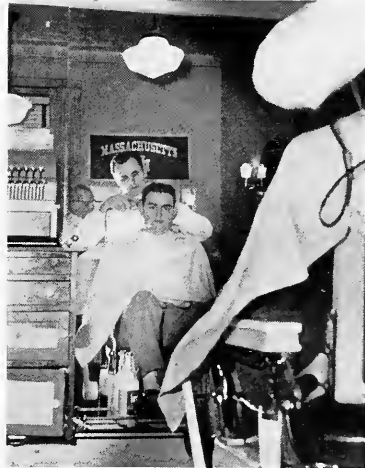

Don't pull, push!

However, one of the biggest issues to come up in the month of February was the discussion, by the students and faculty, of the dishonesty problem. In a huge effort to improve the faculty-student relationships and to discourage cheating on campus both the students and faculty combined to discuss and formulate policy for future years. It is hoped that, from these discussions, a touchy ethical problem can be solved and a uniform standard of values will be set for the students. Regardless of the result, however, such an out-during this month was the huge growth that is predicted for the university; but, an actual enrollment cut may have to be put into effect because of the present lack of classroom facilities and teachers.

We see the problem of enrollment cropping up even now because, with the increased enrollment, we find that the student-auto enrollment has also increased. The parking lots have become even more crowded and the administration has had to pass a rule to suspend freshmen and sophomores who have cars on campus.

Easy on the ears!

So I told him I was only a Junior ...

I still like Ike

standing effort on both the part of the students and faculty has proven that students can intelligently discuss and try to solve the glaring faults which they know to exist with an understanding and receptive faculty.

One of the most controversial issues of the year was settled in the month of February. The Quarterly, suspended amidst much discussion and harangue, was finally reinstated and due to make its appearance once again in March, following the literary specifications set for it by President Mather. Freedom of the press remained a challenged but compromised "inalienable right."

Another concert was planned for our entertainment. The renowned Burl Ives presented us with his famed rendition of folk-tunes. The cage was crowded with those who had come to hear something a little out of the ordinary in the Concert Association's line. An unusual evening, the concert was greeted with much acclaim.

Suddenly our old friend the ground-hog peeped out of his winter home and winked at the sun. Gleefully, we looked forward to warmer days and an early spring. On this cheerful note, the ground-hog disappeared, taking with him a weary February.

"Mommy, can I have one of those for Valentine's Day?"

MARCH

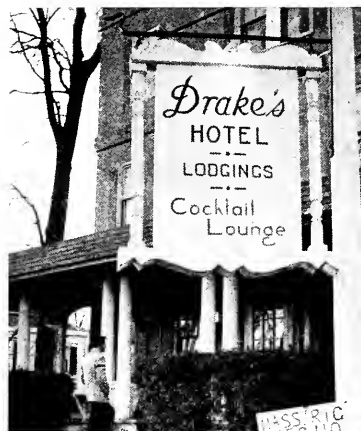

No matter what happens, Louie loses

March was the month of Finnian's Rainbow, the Operetta Guild's fine program, the Beerathon — now an established tradition, the Mrs. Louie contest and, on the intellectual side, International Weekend. All of these activities the campus created; original and, in some cases even ludicrous, but born from our own brand of humor and interest.

The unifying chord throughout these articles has been the memories which will creep fondly into our minds when, in future days, we look back on school events, the familiar hangouts, such as Mike's and Shumway's, and the traditional pastimes, such as the College-Store, and the social hub of the campus, "the libe."

To narrow ourselves to the campus horizon, however, would be a tragic mistake indeed, for this year has been history-making in the outside world. We have seen the well-planned tours of the British monarch, the latest in fashion styles for the year, and the newest jet helicopters that modern science has developed. But more than this, we have heard the snap of angry nations, barking and growling in a fear-ridden world. And from our somewhat sheltered locale, we, the cicadas, are asked to emerge, to try our new-found wings, to take our college diplomas and make them flags of truth, to put the salve on the cuts and bruises of our nation. We are not asked to do this as individuals, but as a huge collegiate nation which has supposedly learned, in four short years, the way to clearer and more correct reasoning. As Thomas Wolfe has poignantly expressed: "...man's life can be, and will be better: man's greatest enemies in the forms in which they now exist — the forms we see on every hand of fear, hatred, slavery, cruelty, poverty and need — can be conquered and destroyed... With the courage of the truth within us, we shall meet the enemy as they come to us, and they shall be ours. And if, once having conquered them, new enemies approach, we shall meet them from that point, from there proceed."

"You pay your money and you take your choice"

"Is there a chance for world peace?"

Looking up the Year-in-Review

Introducing Our New President . . .

JEAN PAUL MATHER

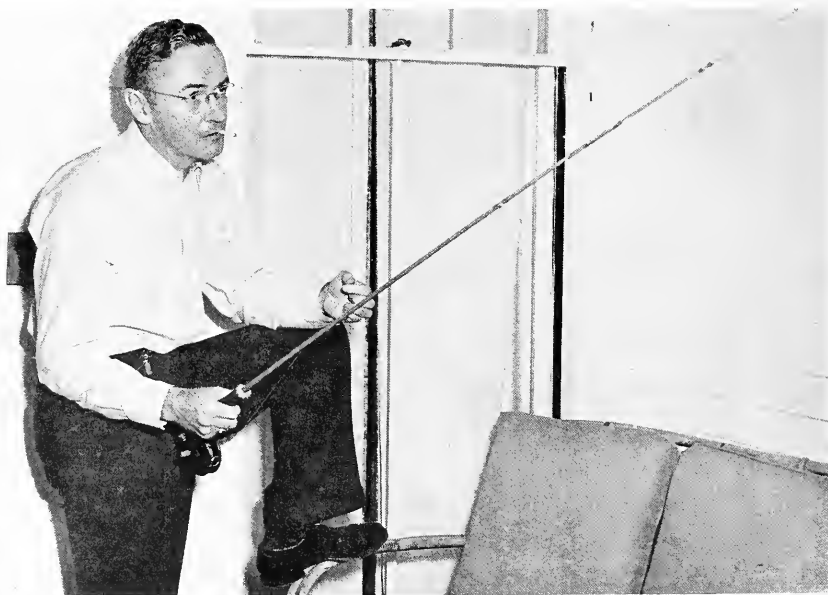

At home with the Mathers

Behind the brown mahogany desk, standing before the rostrum, or leading a motorcade to Cambridge, President Jean Paul Math-er moves with dynamic energy.

As an administrator, which he claims as his first and most chal-lenging job on campus, Mr. Math-er has put his signature to papers which have made the University move—move quickly toward ful-filling the goal of “providing edu-cational opportunities for able youth of limited means.”

An all-time-high budget was passed by the legislature this year, buildings are going up, and grass is being turned over. These are fruitful times and no one is more aware of the excitement of growth than the man who sits behind the desk and smiles with determination as he says, "By 1965 we will have an enrollment of 10,000...."

The name of the University of Massachusetts is being heard all over the state at Alumni meetings, Rotary Club meetings, and just plain meetings—yes, that state university in Amherst is going places.

Buildings alone do not make a university, says Mr. Mather as he points out the need for more professors, a broader curriculum, and above all, "inspired undergraduate teaching...the most single objective of the University in the years ahead.

"At no time should service facilities be pushed in amount or priority so that instructional needs lag and standards accordingly suffer ...the heart and soul of a great university are its people, not sticks and stones."

This man, who seems to have the unique capacity of "getting the ball rolling," also has a basic and significant philosophy. In an address at the Cum Laude service of Williston Academy, February 16, 1955, he adopted the philosophy of one of our area poets, Robert Frost. In referring to freedom, Mr. Mather quoted Frost as saying that it is "freedom of" rather than "freedom from" which is really important. "It is this personal 'freedom of,' the freedom of being yourself and using the talents, the training and the inspiration of your own time of living..."

When inaugurated as the 14th president of the University of Massachusetts on October 21, 1954, he began his speech: "I take this task humbly conscious of the great and good work of the years, and the people of this University." Noted educators from all parts of the country came to witness the inauguration of one of the nation's youngest land grant university presidents. The man who worked his way through the University of Denver and received advanced degrees from both Denver and Princeton, was well aware of the task before him when he said, "There is no spiritual task of greater moment than that of shaping the intellectual character of young men and women...no man can possibly be wise enough to do the best that is here required. I hope to be one of the world's best listeners."

In the comparatively short time he has been with us, Jean Paul Mather has proved to be a brother and a father to all of us. No university could ask for more.

"Dear Lord, bless this food..."

WOMEN'S DORMS

This was a year of firsts as far as the women's dormitories were concerned. Arnold House made its initial opening this past September. Its over two hundred inhabitants certainly made an impressive début. The Arnold girls took third place in the float parade and both first places in the freshman sing and skit, held at the beginning of the year. These enthusiastic youngsters also joined hands with Baker

This was also the year that the inhabitants of the women's dormitories begrudgingly accepted the policy of having "voluntary" office duty on week-ends. The echoes of this decision are still being heard.

All of the dorms continued their own particular traditions by holding Christmas and Halloween parties that added to dormitory fun. All in all, it was a year in which the old joined the new to blend into many happy memories for all concerned.

'Tis all so cramped and close and mean; . . .

MEN'S DORMS

I got two demerits last week

Up high on a hill or down on the plains of this campus one is certain to find those impressive structures called the men's dormitories. Within these walls lurk the male components of the University. Sound and sturdy men are these. We build strong bodies by offering to our Frosh an almost straight uphill climb. Upperclassmen, it seems, fare a little better than the Frosh. Their journeys, although distant, are at least on the lower levels of the campus.

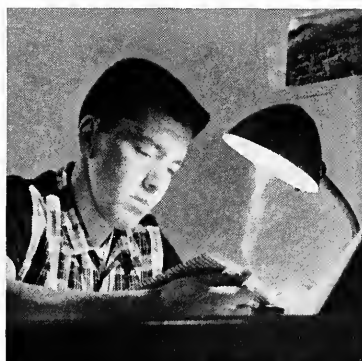

The campus extended a welcome to a host of veterans. In order to make room for this increase in enrollment the administration turned Lewis and Thatcher dorms back to the boys. It was a strange experience in September to see a mass of males roaming in and out of these two buildings at random. These boys, determined to spread a spirit of good will, made a Yuletide sign that spread from one end of their dorm to the other so that it could be seen by all.

Way up atop Baker Hill, the dorm of that same name took second place in the men's division of the Float Parade.

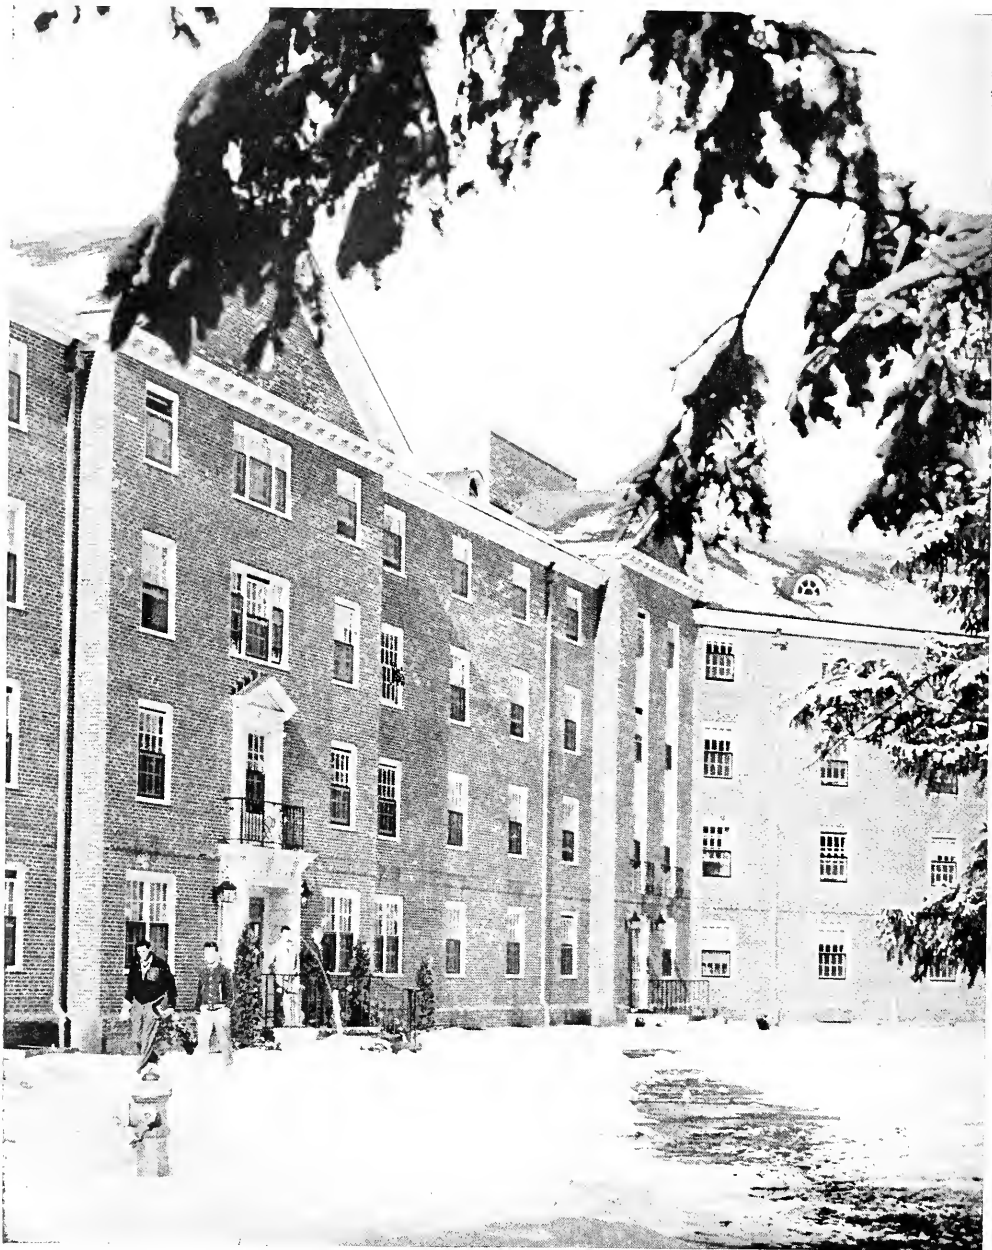

The men continued to spark such operations as Frosh Frolics and this year the boys from Baker joined forces with the girls from Arnold and held a jazz concert. Fun and merriment is always a byword in any of the masculine house establishments. At almost any time of day or night you can hear the loud refrains of a college song, or you can find fellows having an old-fashioned bull session.

The UMass men are still tradition-conscious, however. The boys from Middlesex and Berkshire still complain about their "cracker-box" and the boys from Baker, Chadbourne, and Greenough moan about that ever-present hill.

INDEX

The INDEX is the culmination of a full year's cooperative work of students from every department in the University. As our school has been growing in leaps and bounds, we have tried to compensate for this by presenting, what we have attempted to make, a more inclusive year-book.

The Year in Review has been made the outstanding section of the book in hopes that it will bring to mind, many years from now, those memories that are dearest to us. You will find many changes and additions: we have tried to make these changes only where they would lend to the appearance and coherency of the book. To each section, we have added all the ideas and "gimmicks" which were at our command.

The INDEX has been a full-time job for many of us: its completion is our reward and our gift to you.

It is a thrilling experience to create something new. In publishing the first edition of Ya-Hoo, we feel that we have done just that—created something new, something everlasting, and something of value to the growth of the University. We are proud of our magazine.

Our aim is to satirize college life, in general, and to expose the humorous institutions of the University in particular. Occasionally, we may take pot-shots at the faculty, students, or the administration; but the spirit is friendly and goodnatured, not malicious.

Above all, our goal is to provide a half-hour of light reading matter, far removed from the cloisters of academia.

The success of Ya-Hoo speaks for itself in its future plans. Next year the staff hopes to publish three Ya-Hoo's and, in the next five years, they hope that the demand on the campus will be large enough to warrant five publications a year.

First appearing on the University campus on Winter Carnival Weekend, Ya-Hoo not only fulfilled its purpose but also excelled in its expectations. The stories were humorous, the jokes actually funny. The cartooned advertisements were the highlights of the magazine.

All these constitute the success of a brand new medium of entertainment for the University.

COLLEGIAN

In line with University expansion, the Collegian took the biggest step of any campus organization this semester when they submitted their proposal to "go daily." The bi-weekly paper asked the Senate's finance committee to approve an increase in the student tax so that the publication would appear five times a week starting in September.

Scooping the campus on such vital matters as the Quarterly suspension, the Louie Neusner contest, and its own fight for a daily, the Collegian also sponsored intramural all-star teams, a queen contest, and a drive to raise money for the Springfield Symphony, which took up an "in residence" on campus.

Another new feature of the campus paper were the C&S editorials. When these mysterious scribes wrote, results came quickly. Cheerleaders at basketball games, better recreational facilities, and a motorcade to Holy Cross were the results of a few of their campaigns.

The Collegian coverage of the campus will double next fall, as will the sports and feature material, if the move to daily goes through.

QUARTERLY

Standing: Joan Lachance, Madeleine May
Seated: Anna Downes, Sam Kaplan, Elaine Siegel

The more conservative elements would have changed the name, but it was still Quarterly, even though only three issues of the literary magazine reached the campus in '54-'55.

Suspension of the Quarterly came on December 1, when complaints about allegedly obscene stories reached the university officials, who promptly cut off the magazine's funds and opened a slow-moving investigation which produced almost nothing, except the president's requirement that when the staff of the Quarterly and its advisor disagreed on the "printability" of a story, the president was to decide.

While the lit mag staff members insisted that this amounted to censorship, they accepted President Mather's proposal and hurried to turn out the second and third issues of the year.

The battle centered about the function of the magazine, with the administration insisting that so-called "slice-of-life" writing did not belong in a college publication. The staff disagreed.

In short, the Quarterly became a cause célèbre as it moved toward its goal of providing for an expanding university an enclave of intellectual and artistic integrity. If it lost the battle, it focused sharply the issue of freedom and responsibility in the college press, as no other campus issue has in many years.

HANDBOOK

The University of Massachusetts Handbook, in its attempt to cover the activities and functions of the University, has given to the campus a summary and a cross section of the student life. It is often called the Frosh Bible, because its inclusive coverage of the campus saved many a Freshman from much footwork and inquiry as to the "wheres, whats, and whys" of the campus. And being such, has fulfilled its function as the directory of activities on the campus.

The Handbook is published annually and contains brief and factual information on such things as campus organizations, rules and regulations of the campus, a calendar listing the important events of the college year, and a map of the campus which has saved many UM upperclassmen and freshmen footsteps and time in finding classroom buildings on the campus.

This year, under the editorship of Elaine Siegel, the Handbook has attempted to give to the students, who will return in the fall, another directory of activities and, to another class of incoming freshmen, a Bible which the Handbook hopes will get them where they want to go — when they want to.

OPERETTA GUILD

DORIC ALVIANI
Director

1947 saw the creation of the Operetta Guild and the first production of the new organization. The show was Victor Herbert's, "The Red Mill," and the organization the Operetta Guild. The score was rewritten and the chorus sang and stepped, a fairly standard procedure for a small novice group.

In 1948, there were two shows, "Anything Goes" and "Sweethearts." 1949 came with "Naughty Marietta" and "Girl Crazy," a venture into Gershwin. This year, and for the following two years, the Scrolls served as ushers. In 1950, "Hit the Deck" was presented as a tribute to the late Vincent Youmans.

"Brigadoon" came in 1951, along with new policies — a larger board of directors and more expensive rights. In 1952, it was "The Student Prince" along with a new control board, silk screen posters, and the first appearance of a specially trained and uniformly attired usher corps.

1953 was the year of "The Vagabond King" with fencing, under the tutelage of Phil Powers, that had several parents objecting because it was too realistic. This year, there were two productions again, the second being "Lost in the Stars," which utilized the Chorale and a black-face cast.

The first Rodgers and Hammerstein show was presented by the Guild in 1954 — "Carousel."

This year, the production was "Finian's Rainbow," a musical comedy. One of the biggest innovations, this year, was the change of location from Bowker to the Amherst Town Hall. Production-wise, the most effective change was the extension of the stage to increase the feeling of audience intimacy.

"Finian's Rainbow" delighted the audience with the story of the puckish Irishman's influence on a segment of the United States. Phil Power as Finian, Brad Bryant as Woodie, Norm Farwell as the leprechaun, Elaine Mather as Finian's daughter, and Mary-Ellen Boland as Susan charmed the audience with their realistic characterizations of their parts.

Through the years, the Operetta Guild has built its reputation on fine performance and constant improvement of production. The expressions of the outcoming audience this year were a testimonial to the excellent entertainment of the Operetta Guild and prove, once again, that excellence of performance of the Guild is a permanent thing.

STATESMEN

Ames, Dannaher, Buttaro, Lepkowski, Houghton, Corey, Livas, Palmer

The University Statesmen, a blend of undergraduate male voices, is one of the most popular vocal groups on campus. Their voices lend a vital contribution to the University spirit from their informal caroling at Christmas time to their polished professional performances at Campus Varieties.

Their great popularity is due largely to their variety of songs which make pleasant listening. At Campus Varieties their repertoire included such favorites as Mood Indigo, Cocaine Bill, and the Walls of Jerico. During the Christmas season, their voices, singing all the traditional carols and old standards from Adeste Fideles to White Christmas, lent unmatched charm to the snowless campus and made Christmas an unforgettable season.

The large group of students at the dormitory windows were a tribute to their fine singing.

The Statesmen have toured the state on numerous occasions, singing to clubs, alumni meetings, and other organizations. Thus, they have brought the name of our school closer to the people of Massachusetts.

The fine spirit and the excellent quality of performance have made the Statesmen more than a singing group at the University. They are practically an institution on our campus.

During their between semester vacation, the Chorale toured eastern Massachusetts making ten appearances in high schools, over radio, and concerts for alumni and civic groups. In other appearances the Chorale sang for President Mather's inauguration, Parent's Weekend, and Honors Convocation, besides a large number of off-campus concerts, including one at Westover Base Hospital where they were voted the best entertaining group to perform there during the Christmas season.

A self-supporting organization, the Chorale relies on the fees from off-campus concerts to meet its expenses. These concert arrangements as well as the other business affairs of the Chorale are handled by business manager William Finley, assistant manager Jan Clark, and librarian, Bruce Purrington.

"Finian's Rainbow," this year's Operetta Guild production, found the Chorale providing the major part of the chorus as well as many of the principals.

The Chorale year was drawn to a close with a picnic at the Connecticut River camp of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Farwell, parents of director Normal Farwell.

HARMONAIRES

Back Row: Harris, Weinberger, Pond, Parker, Amos, Blackburn
 Second Row: Rudman, Baron, Barclay, Fisher, Culler, Atkinson
 Front Row: Rawlins, Gaull, Bernstein, Finley, Kearns, MacLeod

Representing a wide range of choral music, the Harmonaires' program contained selections from opera, folk songs, spirituals, religious music, novelty songs, as well as selections from "South Pacific" and "Hans Christian Andersen".

In on-campus appearances, the Harmonaires provided special music for Christmas Vespers and presented a Fine Arts Council Concert. Off-campus, the Harmonaires appeared before several organizations including the Westover Base Hospital and the Massachusetts Home Demonstration Council.

This year William Finley directed the group assisted by soloist-accompanist, Marcia Andress.

ROISTER DOISTERS

The Roister Doisters, the University drama group, gives all, who are interested in the theatre, their chance to participate actively in all phases of theatrical productions. The members of this group experience, not only the thrill of opening night on stage, but also a chance to discover what happens behind the scenes on costume, make-up, staging, and publicity committees.

The Spring production of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!" was enthusiastically received when produced for Parent's Weekend and again for Commencement; it was the first full-scale Arena-style play attempted by the Roister Doisters. "Ah, Wilderness!" was so successful that the Fall production of three one-act plays, completely student directed, and one authored by a student, were again "in-the-round." The three plays — "Only Angels Fly" by Erwin Pally, a University writer, Stephen Vincent Benet's "The Devil and Daniel Webster," and "Murder by Morning" by J. A. Henton — were produced for three nights in Old Chapel Auditorium. Two of these plays have been taken to off-campus audiences.

The Spring productions of the Roister Doisters include Sam and Bella Spewack's "My Three Angels," and a one-act play, "The Informer" given at the Pittsfield Drama Festival.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION

This organization has made great steps forward this year in bringing a variety of enjoyable musical programs to the campus. In addition to presenting the annual series of concerts, which this year included performances by Anna Russell, the International Concert Comedienne; Burl Ives, who entertained a capacity crowd with his memorable folk songs collected from many countries; and the unforgettable Obernkirchen Children's Choir, the Association made arrangements with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra so that this nationally acclaimed organization could become the "orchestra in residence" at the University. The first concert by the Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of the late Dr. Alexander Leslie, presented Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan Opera Soprano, as soloist and a new and interesting feature of the new chorale organization — Symphony Singers. With Patricia Duffy '55 as manager, the fifty or more women singers, from the three upper classes of the University, sang "Blessed Damozel" by Debussy. This singing group was particularly fortunate in having the services and direction of Miss Helen Stott, Instructor in the Music Department, assisted by Norman Farwell '55 and Bruce Purrington '56. After the untimely death of Dr. Leslie, the Springfield Symphony was conducted by Richard Burgin in a concert by Erica Morini, the famed violinist.

All these presentations were well attended by the student body, the faculty, many townspeople and other friends of the University. The diversified programs produced musical moments of enjoyment to lovers of all kinds of music. The entire University is looking forward to next year's concerts with great anticipation, which is the greatest proof of the concert Association's success this year.

STUDENT SENATE

The Student Senate, the most important organization for student opinion and representation on campus, has vigorously fulfilled its duty of keeping in motion the wheels of the University. Under the direction of its capable officers, President George Cole, Vice-president Lois Toko, Secretary Barbara Bedell, and Treasurer Bruce Nilsson, the Student Senate has investigated the present problems of the campus and has made progress in solving these problems.

One of the most commendable activities of the Senate, this year, has been the investigation of the problem of cheating on the campus and the possibility of a working honor system at the University of Massachusetts. Taking their investigation directly to the student body, the Senate mediated group discussions of the problem in the dormitories.

The Senate has also investigated the problem of the infirmary condition on the campus, forming sub-committees to investigate this problem. Investigating the voting procedure, the Senate has revised voting by making all voting centrally located, designing it on the fashion of town voting. The Senate has also contributed to the immediate welfare of the campus by bringing eminent speakers to the University — among them was Dr. Lyons, curator of the Nyman Foundation at Harvard. In addition to such contributions to the campus, the Public Relations Committee sponsored a trip for the Winter Carnival Queen and her court to appear on television.

Another committee of the Senate is the Committee on Student

The eight faculty members serving on the committee were chosen by the provost while the Senate named the ten student members. Its function is advisory to the president on all social functions, whether of a temporary or per-

Unless an organization has been approved by R.S.O., it cannot function fully on campus. This Committee advises the President on all organized extra-curricular activities that require charters, organizational or financial sanction of the Student Senate, and the approval of the President. R.S.O. is responsible for the development of policies and procedures for the organization, standard financial reporting, and continuing operation of student activities.

WOMEN'S JUDICIARY

The Women's Judiciary Board, under the leadership of Chief Justice Mary Beth Mitchell, is an important part of the University's General Court.

The Board interprets and enforces Women's Affairs Committee regulations, which deals with the conduct of women students; especially those cases which are above the jurisdiction of the dormitory House Councils.

The Women's Judiciary collaborates with the Men's Board, the faculty, and student leaders to discuss current campus problems and to promote high standards of integrity and citizenship.

MEN'S JUDICIARY

With the same purpose in mind as the other half of the General Court, the Men's Judiciary meets to enforce regulations concerning the conduct of men students.

The function of the Men's Board, besides enforcing conduct rules, is to handle the numerous traffic violations on campus.

It, too, has four members and a Chief Justice to lead the group. This year's Chief Justice is William Mackey.

In special cases, requiring constitutional interpretation, this Board holds joint meetings with the Women's Judiciary.

Student Christian Association

The annual Christmas Vespers and Carol Sing around the Christmas tree formed the nucleus this year of S.C.A. activities. Organized for students of all faiths, the association has provided relaxation and inspiration to the campus.

Newman Club

Catholic approaches to social, educational and religious phases of student life are examined at the meetings of the Newman Club. Outside lecturers, a series of movies, a first-year entry into the Homecoming Float Parade, have highlighted the Newman Club's successful year.

Hillel Foundation

The purposes of this organization are to serve the religious, social, and intellectual needs of Jewish students and to promote inter-faith cooperation. This year the group offered Sunday evening suppers, dances, debates, movies, and classes in Jewish history. A Chanukah Festival in the fall and a Purim Festival in the spring were among the year's outstanding events.

Judson Fellowship

Students from the Baptist faith from the University and Amherst College unite in the varied activities of the Judson Fellowship. The yearly retreat climaxed the group's activities such as discussion groups, meetings, and varied social events. The group helps to impart the Christian way of life to its members.

Lutheran Club

The Lutheran Club invites Lutheran students on campus to join this organization, the purpose of which is to develop good will and understanding among Lutheran students. The club holds monthly meetings and discussion groups, as well as services for its members.

Wesley Foundation

The Wesley Foundation has met the needs of the Methodist students on campus with its application of Christianity to their various problems. Its monthly meetings and annual summer regional conference at Camp Casowasco highlight the year's activities.

Channing Club

The Channing Club for Unitarian students also welcomes religious liberals as part of its universalist program. The group sponsors weekly Sunday meetings at the Unity Church. At these meetings, discussions sessions and speakers are invited.

Edwards Fellowship

The Edwards Fellowship welcomes students of Congregational and Presbyterian denominations, as well as those with no church affiliation. The group endeavors to impart an understanding of the Christian way of life.

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Club at the University, in conjunction with the National Canterbury Association, welcomes students of Episcopal faith into membership. By meetings, discussions, and social events, the organization strives to keep the students in contact with their church and to reaffirm their Christian ideals.

Orthodox Club

The Orthodox Club was organized for orthodox students on campus. To fulfill the interests and needs of these students programs including a vesper service, speakers, and discussion were offered.

In addition to continuing their more popular programs and personalities, WMUA has attempted to bring in programs from many other sources. The BBC, United Nations Radio, New York Times, international music programs, have contributed to our program in a very important respect.

Campus coverage of interesting events, important to the University students, has remained, as always, WMUA's prime interest. Home sports, plus many more away events, were featured over the station. Campus news, political news from the government department, campus musical groups, and coverage of fraternity and sorority activities, in addition to special events coverage, make up a large bulk of WMUA's programming.

COMMUTERS

Their "dorm" is Mem Hall; their "Commons" is the C-Store, the Snack Bar, or Mem Hall Commuters' Room. Between classes, our off-campus dwellers can be found in their Commuters' Room, studying, playing billiards, ping pong, cards, or just tapping to pop tunes on their newly-acquired juke box.

Although they usually leave campus to go home for dinner, many commuters return later on in the evening. It seems that most of them have a finger in every extra-curricular pie on campus.

Their pet project now, however, is their newly-formed Commuters' Club. They started with just a constitution, but soon, officers were elected. Then came a Christmas Party and their share in the planning of our Winter Carnival. Added dances, parties, and informal get-togethers followed. They wound up their busy year with a Commuters' Picnic which is sure to become an annual fixture. The Commuters' Club experimental year has made it a permanent addition to campus life.

At the beginning of the school year, the commuters held a "Mix-

The commuters arrive by foot, by bus, or in cars of varied vintage but they are just as active and at home here as those students who live on campus. Because of the warm, friendly atmosphere created by the student body, it is impossible to differentiate between a campus-dweller and a commuter—until the sun starts to set.

Massachusetts students and alumni can point with pride to this great team which gave national

A.I.C. The UMass rooters began to lose faith in the team and hoped for better results from next year's team, but the scrappy Lordenmen bounced back with a decisive 6-1 win against the frisky Terriers of Boston University.

The Redmen travelled to Middlebury and outlasted Middlebury College in a free swinging affair by a score of 8-5. The UMass hurlers had failed to check the opposition, but the hitters were able to take command and bang out another victory. The ability of the hitters to take up the slack when the pitchers failed to produce one of their usual fine games was one decisive factor in the UMass team being so successful.

Swanson and Tarpey regained their form by throwing two consecutive shutouts in the next two games against the Coast Guard Academy and Williams College. They performed like true Fakirs—being responsible for the opposing batters who connected with nothing but air.

In a hard fought contest that went down to the wire, Tufts College downed the Umies by a 2-1 score. Pitching was the order of the day and UMass flingers were overcome. A timely hit or a bad hop of the ball could have easily given a win to Earl Lorden's chargers, but Lady Luck was favoring the Tufts' Jumbos that day.

The Rhode Island Rams invaded Amherst for a twin bill and managed to earn a split. UMass cked out a superbly pitched 1-0 victory in the opener, but the Rams turned the tables to capture the nightcap by an identical 1-0 score. Baseball fans were treated with a fine exhibition. Flawless play kept the spectators on edge all afternoon.

The Lorden men finished out the regular season in a blaze of glory by pounding out wins over Trinity, W.P.I. and Quonset N.A.B.

VARSITY BASEBALL

UMass, Springfield College, Holy Cross, and Boston University were nominated to participate in the N.C.A.A. finals. The Statesmen prospects were dim as they had already been defeated by Holy Cross during the regular season and had not played the strong Springfield College nine.

In the opener against Springfield College, the Umies came from behind to register a stunning 9-7 triumph. Don Swanson was knocked out of the box, but Phil Tarpey came on to snatch the victory from the clutches of Springfield. Timely hits by the UMass batters sent the club into the finals.

The champion game was played against the Boston University Terriers who had eliminated the favorites, Holy Cross. This was the do-or-die game for both teams. Victory meant honor, glory, and of course the trip to Omaha as the New England N.C.A.A. champions. Coach Lorden gave a nod to Phil

Tarpey and Phil came through with one of his best games of the year. The UMass defense was perfect in this all-important game. When the dust of battle had cleared, UMass emerged victorious 2-0. This win was well worth all the long hours of hard practice for they were "champs."

The club travelled to Omaha and the N.C.A.A. playoffs. Mass. opened against Michigan State and was soundly trounced, 5-16. The heretofore well-oiled UMass team fell apart at the seams. They were evidently buckling under the strain of the long, hard season. Both the pitchers and fielders appeared to have lost the spark that had carried them through the season.

On the following day, the Statesmen regained their winning ways against a good Oregon team. Showing their familiar hustle from beginning to end they produced a 5-3 victory. This game kept UMass in the running and lifted the spirits of both the team and the rooters.

Next the UMass squad faced a powerful Missouri team. The Redmen team fought valiantly but were beaten, 1-8. This second loss eliminated Mass. from the play-offs with an overall record of 1 win and 2 losses.

The Mass. nine finished out the year with a sparkling record of 15 wins and 7 losses. The fact that they failed to win the N.C.A.A. championship does not discredit them in any way. They were, without a doubt, one of the greatest teams ever to represent this school. The 1954 Massachusetts Baseball Team will always be remembered in the years to come as a club with the spirit that produces champs. Hats off to Coach Earl Lorden and his boys for a job well done.

Led by Capt. John Suleski and All-New England Clarence Simpson, the 1954 version of the Red-men soccer team presented Coach Larry Briggs with his second consecutive winning season. The amiable Clarence took all the individual honors. Besides scoring four goals in one game (B.U.), he also scored more goals than any other player in the New England inter-collegiate ranks for which he received a special University award. Capt. Suleski, playing center half, proved himself to be one of the finest all around captains that Coach Briggs has ever worked with and earned the nickname "Ironman" for his particularly fine defensive play. At the close of the season, Suleski was presented the most valuable player award because of his outstanding team work. Ken Crooks is another person of whom Coach Briggs is very proud. An exceptional dribbler, Ken was an honorable mention on the 1954 all New England soccer team.

In its first year of varsity competition, the Redmen Lacrosse Team was unable to garner a winning season. However, the team did win many friends with the fine competitive spirit and sportsmanship which represented the University at every match. Time and again the Redmen, led by Coach Al Goodyear, showed sparks of real ability only to be hampered by lack of experience and depth.

Goalie Ed Monaghan distinguished himself by making 48 saves in the game against Amherst, which the Redmen lost, 15-4. Following a 5-4 victory over Brown, the team was defeated by Middlebury, Boston Lacrosse Club, W.P.I., and Trinity.

VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY

During 1954, the team with the toughest schedule of any varsity sport at the University turned out some of the outstanding individuals in the New England intercollegiate ratings. One look at the schedule should be enough to show even the most casual sports fan that such boys as Bob "Squeaky" Horn and Will Lepkowski really had to move to cop those ratings against such top flight competition. The Redmen competed in six dual meets and Horn won five of them. He also ran first in the Connecticut Valley meet and second in the Yankee Conference meet. Lepkowski, though not quite as formidable during the dual meets, managed to even up the score with Horn by the tremendous feat of placing third against New England's best cross country runners.

Coach Bill Footrick saw his varsity indoor trackmen close the door on another season, saying good-bye to the boards and hello to the outdoor cinders with the coming of the warm spring weather.

With a record of no wins and two losses in the dual meets, a third in the Connecticut triangular meet, and also failing to place in five other contests, the season, of course, cannot be considered successful, especially if one overlooks the fact that the Redmen were shorthanded in many departments.

The marvelous rebuilding program of Coach Steve Kosakowski certainly paid great dividends to this year's varsity hockey team. This team was one of the most spirited of any team that we have seen in years. Capitalizing upon such spirit, Kosakowski was able to whip together an amazing combination.

The team, this year, entered the newly formed Eastern-Inter-Collegiate Hockey League. Aided by such outstanding members as "Cappy" Kidd, Ron Lundgren, Jim Fagen, and Captain Joe Faucette, the "Pucksters" were able to set a new high for the season with a 7-3 record.

WRESTLING

An expanding University saw the initiation of wrestling as a new varsity sport. The grapplers started the year off with an impressive victory over B.U. Coach Ralph Ballou's injury-riddled matmen lost the next dual meet to a more experienced MIT team. The Tufts wrestling team poured it on in the heavyweight events and defeated the Redmen 21-5 with Chet Clarridge and Ric Rickert tallying the only UMass wins.

The wrestling team closed out its season with the matmen participating in the NEIAAU Wrestling tournament held at Tufts College, Medford, Mass.

With such top teams as Springfield, Williams, and Wesleyan as contestants, the best the Redmen could do was to capture a fourth place in the 130-pound class as Tom Smith decisioned BU's Nathanson and MIT's Simmons.

Chet Clarridge (the team's regular 147-pounder) was unanimously chosen to captain next year's varsity squad.

match was drawn into three sets. The Netmen's only other match defeat came as the Huskies of UConn triumphed by a slim 5-4 margin. From this point on, things went more smoothly for the Redmen. Holy Cross and Clark fell before the volleys of Captain Clarence Simpson and his team-mates Al Marcus, John MacLeod, Al Boren, Art Dugas, Lee Linton, Saul Feingold, and Jerry Sadow.

After two days of competition in the Yankee Conference, it seemed that the Redmen would win the title for the second time in six years, but an eager UConn team surged ahead on the last day of play to walk away with the laurels and leave the Redmen in second place.

Finishing the season strongly, the Netmen won their next four contests, beating Springfield for the first time on their courts, and beating Tufts for the first time in four years.

With a new group of sophomores moving up from the freshman squad and many veterans on the squad at present, the prospects are bright for the 1955 season.

but she will never have a football squad to equal the 1954 club. It was our Columbus, our Davey Crockett, our Daniel Boone, for they dared to go where others had feared to. They not only went, but they returned to embellish themselves and their school with undying glory. Coach O'Rourke instilled the spirit to win in his team: and win they did.

fought and close all the way, with the Redmen emerging victorious 32-25.

The following week was the game the entire school was waiting for. The O'Rourkemen were facing their first Ivy League opponent since the school became a University. The time was two o'clock, October 2; the place—Harvard Stadium; the opponent — none other than Harvard University. UMass was now stepping into the big time. Boston sports writers scoffed and termed this game the "mis-match" of the century. The Harvard school paper satirically announced the invasion of the "cow college" from the western hills. No one gave the Statesmen a chance of winning, but still, the students were confident. Classes were called off the day of the game, and President Mather led a motorcade to Boston. From the opening whistle, the UMass rooters cheered each successful play. Overconfidence on the part of Harvard, and do or die spirit by the Massmen produced a 13-7 victory. The Umies went wild with joy. The school had, at last, gained the recognition it deserved. We were no longer the "cow college" from the western hills.

The next game pitted a strong UConn team against the Redmen. Charlie O'Rourke and his boys were out to avenge last year's defeat by the Huskies. In one of the best games of the season, Mass. downed UConn 20-13.

There was no stopping the O'Rourke men now. They had three big wins under their belt and were aiming at a perfect season: team morale was at a peak. The only question concerning the next game was how many points we should score, for the club proved invincible in its first three games.

The Statesmen trekked down to Rhodie to meet the Rams. An air of overconfidence came over the team and Rhode Island was the first to strike. The Mass. squad never recovered from the initial shock and went down to defeat 52-6. The mighty conquerors were vanquished. They were outplayed by a spirited R. I. eleven.

The next week, Northeastern invaded Alumni Field. Mass. was short-handed due to the dubbing in by Rhodie and were unable to

SKIING

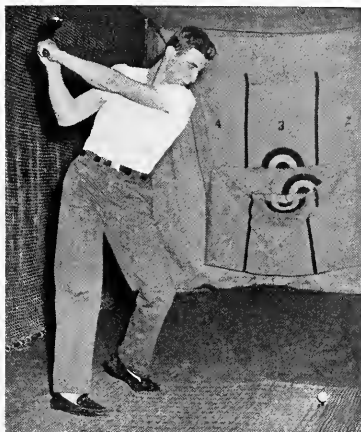

There is an old adage that there is "No sport like a snow sport." but, unfortunately, there were no snow sports this year. The weatherman had only frustration for our skiing team. Coach Larry Briggs had his boys diligently running cross country, keeping them in shape, but nature would not permit an active ski team. The most competitive activity that the "Snowmen" engaged in was electing Captain Al Cotton.

The team was composed of Capt. Cotton, Wilde, and Hollister. These boys were all veterans. Little is known, however, about Shields, Duff, and Halloran, the other members of this team, but there is hope that they will all be able to ski next year.

GOLF

Massachusetts should be a definite dark horse in New England Intercollegiate golf circles this year. In the New England tournament last May, the Redmen linksters placed seventh and according to Coach Charlie O'Rourke, "We are looking forward to doing better this year."

Around a nucleus of such returning veterans as Tom Morrison, Capt. Dave Damon and Ben Getchell, O'Rourke can look to newcomers such as Glenn Barr, Charlie Dane and Warren Packard for plenty of help. O'Rourke cagily admits that he expects his boys to win a majority of their matches.

SWIMMING

Star Hanson and Coach Rogers

As the swimming team opened its 1954-55 season, it was faced with the task of either equaling last year's fine record of 6 wins and 3 losses, or bettering it. This year, they accomplished the latter, finishing the season with a record of 7 and 3. The going was not very easy for the mermen in their opening meets, however, and Coach Joe Rogers saw his team dunked in two successive losses. The first loss was to cross-town rival Amherst College by a score of 51-33. By coincidence, the Umies dropped their second meet to Wesleyan by the same score. The following meet, against Worcester Tech, proved to be the one that snapped the Joe Rogersmen out of their early season doldrums and started them on a long six-game winning streak. After this win, the team recessed for mid-semester exams but came back to down Holy Cross 52-31. Within the next week, the Umies were faced with two tough meets but were equal to the task as they beat Tufts 48-36 and nipped a well-trained Coast Guard squad 43-41. The next meet proved to be somewhat of a breather to the UMass mermen as they had an easy time in trouncing Bridgeport

60-23. The Redmen were fortunate in getting this breather, however, for the next team that they had to face was Rensselaer Polytech, which supposedly had one of the best teams at that school in many years. This fact did not bother the Umies for, in one of their finest showings of the season, they splashed their way to a close, but solid, 44-40 win over the Engineers. At this point in the schedule, the Redmen had a six-game winning streak going and an over-all record of 6 wins and two losses. The next meet, however, saw the win streak snapped as a powerful UConn team swamped UMass 62-22. To close out the season, the Redmen up ended Bowdoin by a score of 45-37.

BASKETBALL

The 1955 edition of the Redman Basketball squad produced one of the most exciting teams ever to represent the University of Massachusetts. While only winning ten out of twenty-three games, the Currenmen provided the Mass. fans with college basketball at its best. The sports world predicted great things for this team but lack of height and injuries to key men proved to be insurmountable obstacles for the Statesmen to overcome.

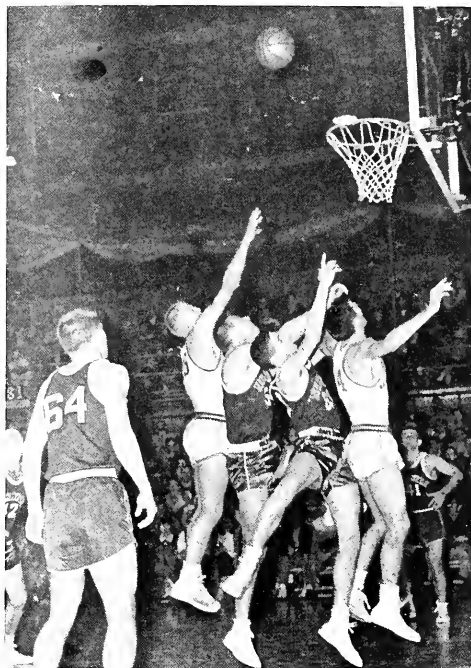

The current season opened against Vermont, a strong Yankee Conference rival. In a good old nip and tuck affair, which was close up to the final buzzer, the Redmen five emerged victorious, 88-78.

The next game gave the Mass. fans their first chance to see Coach Curren and his boys in action. Norwich provided the opposition in this game. The Statesmen, shaking off their "first game jitters," romped home by a 73-58 score.

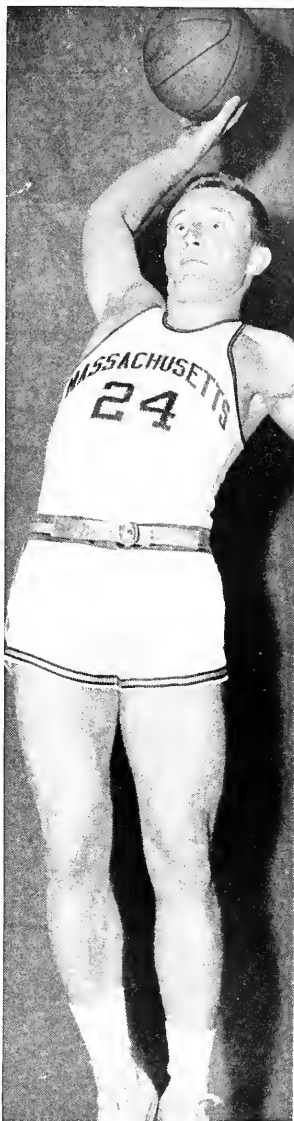

Following the Norwich game, the UMass five travelled to Boston to engage a powerful Northeastern club. This game was another thriller, but the Statesmen would not be denied and copped their third straight win 70-63. By this time,

What are the odds?

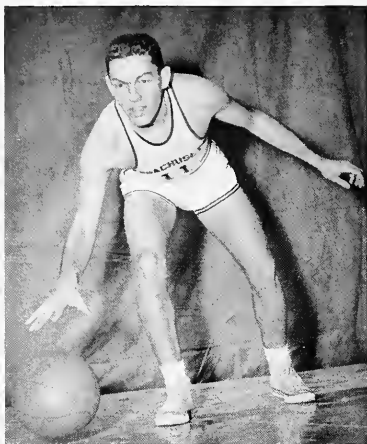

Ha, Ha! I fooled ya.

Here it comes!

the Mass rooters were starry-eyed over their team. The team seemed even stronger than expected.

The next game pitted the Redmen against the Holy Cross Crusaders. Even the team's most loyal supporters did not expect a victory against the powerful Crusaders, but still they hoped. The game was very close, with the teams never more than a few points apart, until the strong bench of Holy Cross came on in the waning moments, to produce an 85-64 triumph and send the UMass five down to their first defeat.

At Hartford, the Currenmen regained their winning ways against Trinity. In another thrilling contest, the Mass. five proved the best team to incur the wrath of the Redmen. The boys put on a great show on their second home game trouncing the invaders 90-46.

The following game pitted the Redmen against Boston University, a perennial powerhouse. The Mass. five started fast and had the baskets blazing hot throughout the entire game. When the smoke of battle had cleared, the scoreboard read B.U. 80—Mass. 104. A host of new scoring records were set in this game. This brought the Mass. Cagers to a record of six wins in seven starts.

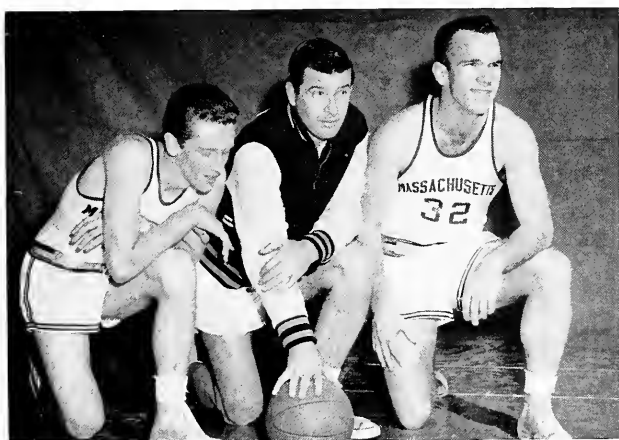

BASKETBALL

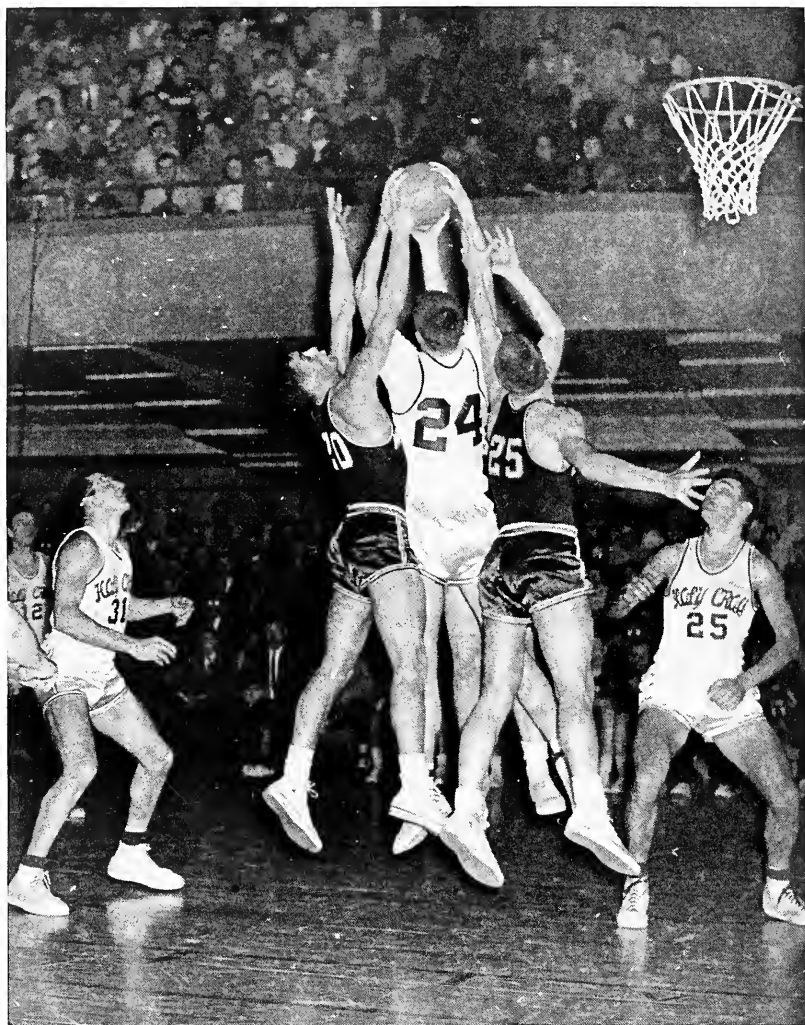

The next game came in the Boston Garden against Colby, one of the strongest teams in the East. The game was close and hard fought all the way with Colby coming out on top by the slim margin of two points 81-79—a real heartbreaker for the Statesmen to lose. This game seemed to take a lot of starch out of the team, for they never were able to regain their winning ways afterwards.

BASKETBALL

Aw, e'mon. It's my turn

BASKETBALL

During vacation, the Mass. quintet entered the N.E.I.T. at Connecticut. They lost three straight games in the tournament: to Dartmouth 65-87, to Amherst 48-69 and another thriller to Colby 64-65. The old zip and sparkle was missing from the team.

As classes resumed, the Mass. Hoopsters journeyed to Medford to engage Tufts College. Once again, they were beaten by a score of 76-90. This was the fifth consecutive defeat for the Redmen and spirit was pretty low on the team.

In the next game, the Redmen bounced back on the victory track against Coast Guard. The Currentmen seemed to regain their former greatness in a 95-68 win.

The following game saw the Redmen go down to defeat at the hands of a well-balanced Springfield five 73-82. The Mass. Cagers played a good game but lack of height on their part proved to be the deciding factor.

The University of New Hampshire played host to the Redmen at their next game and proved to be very cordial to their guests. UMass outlasted New Hampshire in a high scoring game 90-80.

The next three games were played at home. Williams College, one of the top small school teams in the country, defeated UMass 77-57; Amherst, our crosstown rivals, trounced us 73-53; and Rhode Island completed the triple invasion by outscoring us 102-88.

Following these three straight losses at home, the Redmen travelled to Waltham to encounter Brandeis University. In one of the most exciting games of the season, the Currenmen went down to defeat, 80-82.

Returning home, against A.I.C., the UMass five lost once again 73-86. The same week, Maine invaded the Cage and outlasted the Redmen 90-83.

Next came a game at UConn. Art Quimby and his team-mates, a nationally ranked five, trounced the Redmen 93-75. The Redmen were leading at half time but were unable to keep their lead.

In the final contest of the year, the University of New Hampshire invaded for a rematch. The Redmen were well prepared to end the season on a happy note, and they did by trouncing U.N.H. 98-79.

Thus the curtain came down on another basketball season. The win and lost record facts tell the true story of the 1955 Redmen Basketball Team. They were far better than their record shows but lack of height proved an Achilles heel to them. The loss of guard Stan Berman was another blow to the team.

With Johnnie Clark the only senior on this year's team, prospects for next year are very good. George Burke, who was chosen for the Yankee Conference all-star team, will be back next year to

The 1953-54 pistol team improved on last year's record by coming in seventh in the United States Revolver Association matches. They were eighth last year in the same contest.

The U.S.R.A. matches are conducted over a period of eight weeks, with each participating team shooting at U.S.R.A. targets. The teams are rated by the total score of the five top men on each team.

Those that placed higher than the Redmen were such teams as West Point, Annapolis, and Michigan State.

Charles McCarthy was the top marksman on this year's team, and although it has not been confirmed yet, he appears to be a cinch for All-American. Other consistent top men this year were Captain Joseph Rogers III, Claude Barrette, Hugh Ahern, and Richard Waite.

Front Row: Damon, Baker, Zulalian, Crowley, George

The Varsity Rifle Team ended its season with a fair but unimpressive record of 5 wins and 6 losses. The record, however, could have been better if the shooters under Coach Henry Wooster had not lost three of their most important matches by less than five points. These matches were with three of the giants in New England: the University of New Hampshire, M.I.T. and the University of Maine. The team showed greater all-around strength this year than last, with aces George McCrillis, top scorer for the year; Rex Baker, team captain; and Dave St. Lawrence. The high points of the season came at the beginning with the team's annual match against Norwich University and its trip to Troy to fire Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and another to Worcester to fire WPI.

NAIADS

Thirty-two graceful aquatic ballerinas comprise the Naiads, the University of Massachusetts synchronized swimming club; they are chosen especially for their swimming ability. The group provides a training class of Junior Naiads including ten freshman girls chosen in the fall who practice separately from the club until sometime in May, when they become full-fledged members. Thus the regular group always has a full supply of alternates.

Their shows in April and during Parent's Weekend display the brilliant results of this practice. These shows are student written, directed and costumed under the supervision of Miss Wallace of the Women's Physical Education Department. Swimming to music, the girls present group and duet numbers.

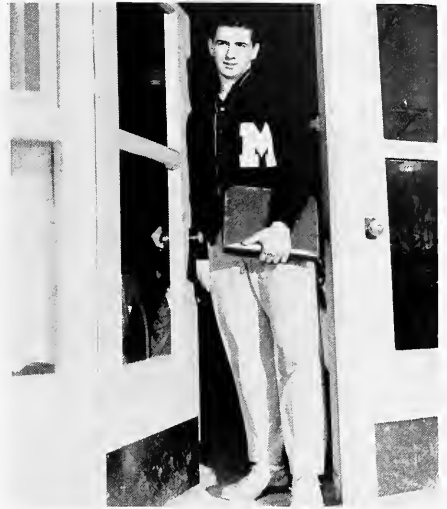

The title of their show this year is Aqua Silhouettes and the idea of the show is carried through by the new black bathing suits the girls will be wearing, as well as the skillful performances the girls will exhibit.

VARSITY M—W.A.A.

The Varsity M Club, composed of distinguished athletes who have won their "M" in varsity sports, functions to promote fellowship, encourage scholarship, and maintain good relations between coaches and players.

For the benefit of the scholarship fund, the club runs concessions and sells the sports programs at athletic events and concessions at registration. Among the plans under consideration is one to hold annual fall dances, in particular, a dance for seniors, to raise funds for special awards.

The Women's Athletic Association, representative group of sports minded girls here at the University, has offered throughout the past year a varied sports program—including field hockey and golf.

A highlight in this year's schedule was the first intra-mural swim meet held in the late fall. Besides sponsoring the extra-curricular sports activities for the Coeds the WAA begins the first semester very early by organizing and conducting with other Campus Organizations the Freshman Play-day during Frosh Orientation.

Plans for the future include broadening the program, reaching more people and providing outlets for those girls who enjoy athletic activity in various forms.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

ROBERT LEAVITT
Executive Secretary

The Alumni Office functions as the general information center for University graduates wherever they may be. The office keeps a file on all alumni and maintains data on the doings and whereabouts of graduates. It publishes a magazine, Massachusetts Alumnus, to distribute information to and from alumni. This is an enlargement and improvement on the former Alumni Bulletin.

The Office, reorganized for greater effectiveness under Mr. Leavitt, who is Alumni Secretary, is a direct tie between present and past U. of M. students. The Associate Alumni body has established itself as one of the most devoted and helpful alumni bodies in the country. Its efforts were directly responsible for Memorial Hall, and many of our dormitories. Its plans now include construction of a long-needed Student Union building.

'Tis all the same: the book I can repeat, . . .

GILBERT LLEWELLYN WOODSIDE
Dean

Dedicated to the ideal of the advancement of knowledge through faculty and student research and other creative work, the Graduate School believes that such work is the best method of developing intellectual humility, because through it the student learns how difficult it is to add to the sum of human knowledge. It hopes to stimulate the spark of intellectual curiosity in all of its students so that regardless of what career they are preparing themselves for, their true preparation is for a life devoted to learning. It seeks to impart respect for true scholarship, as not alone the grasp of the methodology of a field of learning, but unwavering dedication to an impelling desire to know, as well as the development of the ability to find true satisfaction in knowing.

IN MEMORIAM

DANIEL HORACE NELSON

1898-1955

A cheerful smile, a kind word, a penetrating question and the force of fact were his teaching tools. All of us who knew him have borrowed something of his philosophy. In borrowing we acknowledge our indebtedness.

His educational training at the University of New Hampshire, University of Missouri and Pennsylvania State University, together with his teaching experience at the University of California and New Mexico State College, amply qualified him for the teaching tasks here. He had the ability to translate the scientific into the practical, which endeared him to those students who were privileged to know him as a teacher.

He delighted in retaining the provincialisms of speech and manner that were marks of his New Hampshire youth. We shall not soon forget his classic definition of an impasse, which for him was an uncomfortable position somewhere "between a rock and a hard place."

He was never too busy to see anyone and his door was always open. He was constantly revising his courses to include currently important material.

He leaves a host of friends — his colleagues, his students, both those on the campus and those who have gone out into the world; and numerous business men, who through the years, have been the beneficiaries of his sage advice.

HARRY NEWTON GLICK

1885-1954

There have always been two philosophies — that of the stage and that of the gallery. One is concerned with participation in the drama of life, while the other finds its fulfilment in the careful study of what is going on.

Professor Glick was, from first to last, a philosopher involved in the practical issues of life. Students in large numbers sought his classes not only to study the great traditions of philosophy but to learn at first hand from one in whom they had confidence as a man of unimpeachable character, a thinker owing allegiance to no party whether political, religious, or philosophical, and a teacher with sympathetic understanding of the academic and personal problems which confront college students who are making decisions of permanent importance for their future.

Professor Glick was born in Bridgewater, Virginia, on February 10, 1885, and died at his Amherst home on May 28, 1954, on the eve of retirement to his Virginia home. He came to Amherst in 1924 after receiving his Ph.D. degree from the University of Illinois. Professor of Agricultural Education, he introduced philosophy into the curriculum by way of the history of education. The expansion of this program culminated in the change of his title to Professor of Philosophy in 1945, and in the formal establishment of the Department of Philosophy in 1951 with Professor Glick the first Head of the Department.

If Professor Glick had been asked the object of his deepest pride and satisfaction, he would have replied, "My family". The larger circle of his friends among the staff, students, and alumni of a generation share with Mrs. Glick and their two sons, the deep loss of a beloved teacher, loyal friend, and a devoted husband and father.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

President: Mildred Feldberg

Vice-President: Ruth Haenisch

Secretary: Alice Taupier

Treasurer: Joan Whittemore

The Pan-Hellenic Council's purpose is to promote cooperation and coordination among sororities. This local council is guided by the National Pan-Hellenic Council in its regulation of rushing and its maintaining of friendship among the sororities.

Pan-Hellenic Council sponsors an annual workshop for the exchange of ideas and the training of newly-elected officers. The officers of this year's council are: President, Mildred Feldberg; Vice-President, Ruth Haenisch; Secretary, Alice Taupier; and Treasurer, Joan Whittemore. The Council also sponsors an annual Inter-Sorority Sing and Declamation and social events such as exchange suppers.

This year, under the leadership of President Mildred Feldberg Pan-Hellenic Council has contributed a great deal toward promoting the friendship and social life of the campus.

Back Row: Honberg, Larwood, Lewonis, LeClair, Meyers, Hall, Kelley
Front Row: Patashnick, Feingold, Haenisch, Feldberg, Whittemore, Taupier

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Interfraternity Council is composed of a junior and senior member from each fraternity. Its purpose is to act as a medium for the administration and to oversee all interfraternity relations.

The Council sets up rules for rushing and supervises all pledge matters. It carries on an active athletic schedule among the fraternities. Perhaps its most noteworthy accomplishment is its promotion of Greek Week activities.

The sum total of the I.F.C.'s achievements is its promotion of friendly relations among the fraternities and between the fraternities and the campus.

Greek Week, sponsored by I.F.C.

was a notable affair. Sings were held on the lawn at Mem Hall, and the climax was the Ball with the music of Sammy Kaye at Northampton High School.

For the future, plans are being made for a "Help Week", run in connection with Hell Week. The council feels that this will promote good will between the Town, Faculty, Administration, and the Greeks. Other plans are a longer rushing period and more Greek competition.

CHI OMEGA

From the first autumn leaf to the last spring snowflake, the Chi O's were represented in many activities: Drill Team, W.A.A., Naiads, Departmental Clubs, Campus Committees, Cheerleaders, Majorettes, Literary and Musical Organizations, plus representatives in Scrolls, Isogon, Who's Who in American Colleges, Class Officers, and other honorary societies.

Who can forget football open houses, jazz bands, exchange suppers, Mrs. B., new pledges, occasionally new conversation, Pledge Formal, the Country Club, housecleaning, Soph-Sr. Picnic, and little things that make up sorority life.

To Chi O's, 1954-55 means more than is recorded here. This is only a reminder of a year they will not forget.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

A redecorated chapter house was the scene of many eventful days for the Thetas. Early in the fall the Gamma Etas entertained Mrs. Stevens, their District President. The girls, in cooperation with Lambda Chi held a Christmas party for Amherst children. There were open houses after football games and get-togethers with fraternities at Amherst and W.P.I., the social season being highlighted by the annual Pledge Formal in February.

Looking back on campus activities, we see Thetas active in Roister Doisters, W.A.A., Scrolls, Chorale, Isogon, Cheerleaders, campus publications, Drill Team, Naiads, Operetta Guild, Symphony Singers, Senate, and Women's Judiciary.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

The fall season holds many fond memories for the girls in Kappa Kappa Gamma. Winning first place in the annual Homecoming Float Parade, open houses, exchange suppers, welcoming 17 freshman pledges and Pledge Formal. Spring brought the annual KKG Initiation Banquet, Junior-Senior Dinner, and Senior Week Activities.

As in other years, the house was well represented on Isogon, Scrolls, Judiciary, and Senate, as well as Cheerleaders, Drill Team, Naiads, W.A.A., Winter Carnival Committee, Chorale, Roister Doisters, and Operetta Guild.

Congenial living and meaningful experiences make this year one to be remembered in the best tradition of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

PHI DELTA NU

This year the Phi Delta Nu's look back on their celebrated fourth birthday and the first year having their own sorority house. Upholding the high nondiscriminatory and humanitarian principles of Phi Deltas, sorority activities included the distribution of Thanksgiving baskets and Christmas gifts to needy families, as well as entertaining a group of orphans.

The girls were also occupied with campus activities—Chorale, W.M.U.A., Collegian, Roister Doisters, Operetta Guild, and other campus organizations.

The many social affairs included open houses for campus sororities and fraternities and a successful Pledge Formal at the Roger Smith Hotel.

PI BETA PHI

1954-1955 has been another school year in the Pi Phi tradition. Pi Beta Phi placed first of sororities in academic and athletic standings, the girls participating actively in Women's Judiciary, Collegian, Isogon, Chorale, Roister Doisters, Drill Team, Band, W.A.A. and Operetta Guild.

The social calendar was highlighted by teas the girls gave in honor of their new housemother, Mrs. Sandbourne; the Province President, Mrs. Whipple; and Mrs. Wilde, Grand President. The girls also had exchange suppers with campus sororities and fraternities and open houses after football games. For Pi Phi's, 1954-55 will be remembered.

SIGMA DELTA TAU

Remembrance of a wonderful year started for the Sig Delts at the 17th Biennial National Convention. Psi chapter received awards for scholarship, harmonious living, pledge project, and for the winning original sorority song.

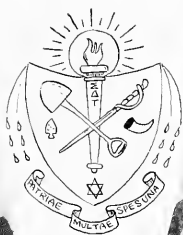

On campus, the sorority maintained its usual high scholastic and social standing. Sig Delts showed active campus participation as president of Panhellenic, managing and departmental editors of the INDEX and Handbook, Isogon, Omicron Nu, Who's Who in American Colleges, Collegian, Hillel, W.A.A., Symphony Singers, and Drill Team.

The social calendar holds unforgettable memories of open houses, parties, sleigh rides, exchange suppers, and Pledge Formal.

SIGMA KAPPA

The graduating Sigma Kappas leave behind a record of achievement which is the foundation for the future of the sorority.

The year was a success in every phase of campus life. The Sigmas had among their members the Horticulture Queen, President of Roister Doisters, Editor of the Collegian. They were represented on Isogon, Women's Affairs Committee, and Drill Team.

A Jazz Concert and open house after the first home football game opened a social season of exchange suppers, the Christmas Alumnae Party and the Pledge Formal.

The silver casserole dish, displayed at the chapter house, was obtained at the Miami Beach National Convention which boasted seven Beta Etas in attendance.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

On the mantelpiece of the chapter house on Sunset Avenue, added to the trophies from interfraternity competitions on campus, stands the Best Chapter Award presented to Phi chapter at the national AEPi convention in Chicago last September. The social season too had many outstanding events—the annual Military Brawl and Monte Carlo Night, to mention a few.

On campus, the house was well represented by brothers on the staffs of the Collegian and INDEX, with others on Adelpia, Maroon Key, WMUA, and the various athletic teams. All this in addition to a promising freshman class made 1954-1955 a memorable year for AEPi.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

This year, as in the past, A.G.R., the national agricultural fraternity on campus, looks back on a successful scholastic and social year.

The men of Mu participated on the judging teams, in the Horticulture Show, and received first prize for their winning Homecoming float. Alpha Gam was well represented by brothers active in campus organizations.

A full social calendar of weekly Saturday night parties was highlighted by the Farmer's Frolic, pledge semi-formal, and the Pink Rose formal in the spring.

The boys at A.G.R. have striven to maintain a healthful college atmosphere both in the house and on the campus.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity was reactivated this year by Delta Phi Gamma fraternity, a local organization founded in 1953 by Andrew Bartholomew, Robert Burbank, Richard Klingler, Roger Legare, David Seymour and William Vogel. The fraternity has grown from 14 charter members to over 30 members in the past two years. During this time the fraternity has participated in all fraternity activities as well as petitioning Alpha Sigma Phi for a reactivation of the Gamma chapter which had been granted to the University of Massachusetts in 1913.

The new chapter is over the "hump" now with a stable membership, national affiliation and a house of its own just around the corner. This spring the first class graduates. They will leave behind them a going concern which will grow and grow and grow until it occupies its rightful position as leader of the campus. At the present signs of achievement can be seen in the house with brothers in all the major activities and leaders in interfraternity sports.

DELTA SIGMA CHI

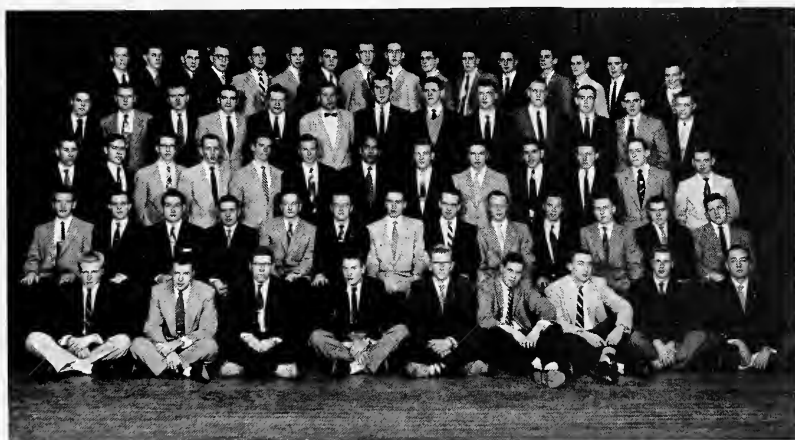

The first week of the fall semester found Delta Sig unforgettably in the throes of remodeling their house, installing new plumbing and heating systems, bathroom facilities, and a new kitchen.

The new kitchen meant better party facilities for the weekly Saturday night affairs. Highlights of the year were dances with Phi Beta Alpha from Northeastern and Tau Kappa Epsilon from New Hampshire, the annual Christmas party for underprivileged children of the area, and the annual formal.

Delta Sig's well-rounded fraternity life included active participation in Adelphia, the Statesmen, Chorale, Roister Doisters, the Senate, A.P.O., Athletics, and numerous other campus organizations.

KAPPA SIGMA

Combining versatility in campus activities with a colorful social calendar, the Kappa Sigs enjoyed a memorable year. The brothers held places of leadership in major university activities including Maroon Key, Winter Carnival Committees, Military Ball Committees, and the Statesmen. The house shone athletically in its usual participation in all varsity and intramural sports.

Socially, the standard Saturday night parties were highlighted by a gay Christmas party for the underprivileged children of Amherst, and the traditional Embassy Ball and Pledge Formal. This active participation and cooperation of brothers will add future years to this one on the list of memorable seasons.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

As the warm spring breezes signal the end of the 1954-55 academic year, we at Lambda Chi look back with pride at our fine record.

A Man of the Year, Maroon Key, Adelpbias, Statesmen, three class officers, various club officers, three varsity captains are activities of the brothers of the Cross and Crescent. In the Interfraternity Council campus competition, Lambda Chi Alpha won second place.

Socially, our Founder's Day Banquet and the fall and spring formals headed the calendar of weekly Saturday night parties.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Phi Sig has spent another year supplementing academic life with a full social program. Many fondly remember the Autumn Nocturne Formal, the cordial greetings from brothers at M.I.T. during the Harvard Weekend, and the much-mentioned Parisian Party in the fall. Our full social program was climaxed in the spring by the Moonlight Ball and our traditional Mass Grass at Green Pond. During the fall semester we placed second in intramural football and ranked first in the campus blood drive. Brothers were members of campus honor societies.

Looking back at the past year Phi Sigs feel that their association enriched a full college experience.

Q. T. V.

For its 86th year on campus, one of Q.T.V.'s main objectives, promoting brotherhood, was realized in all phases of fraternity life. The brothers distinguish themselves through active participation in campus, social, and athletic affairs, as well as membership in numerous organizations and clubs. The fraternity's intramural athletic teams were at the top in all competition while a long list of social events rounded out a full calendar.

The three-year program of house improvement, of remodeling, enlarging, and modernizing of the fraternity house was completed by painting the house which marks another long step forward in the fraternity's long tradition of success.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Placing high in interfraternity competition makes 1954-55 a memorable year for the SAEs.

After an undefeated intramural football season, the house ranked high in basketball and softball. SAEs were leaders in Roister Doisters, Campus Varieties, Operetta Guild, Adelphia, Student Government, "Who's Who in American Colleges," and outstanding individual athletes.

A busy social season will be remembered by gatherings like the Kickoff Party, January Thaw, and the Spring Formal. The fraternity moved up five places in scholastic standings.

The chapter house was improved and plans were formulated for a new house. This year has been a fine example for an aspiring pledge class.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

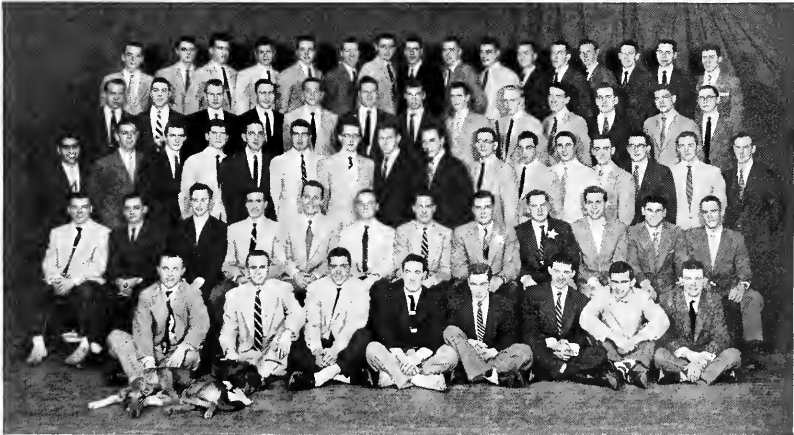

Greek Week was an unforgettable one for the Sig Eps—they took first place in the Sing, Skit, and Snow Sculptures as well as placing second in intramural softball competition.

The fraternity men were leaders in campus life, holding such positions as President of the Senate, Military Ball Committee, and other organizations.

Sig Ep continued its tradition of outstanding parties, the most notable ones being Fiesta, Black and White Ball, and the Sweetheart Ball.

Plans for the future center around hopes for a new house, construction of which the Sig Eps hope to complete by the fall of 1956.

TAU EPSILON PHI

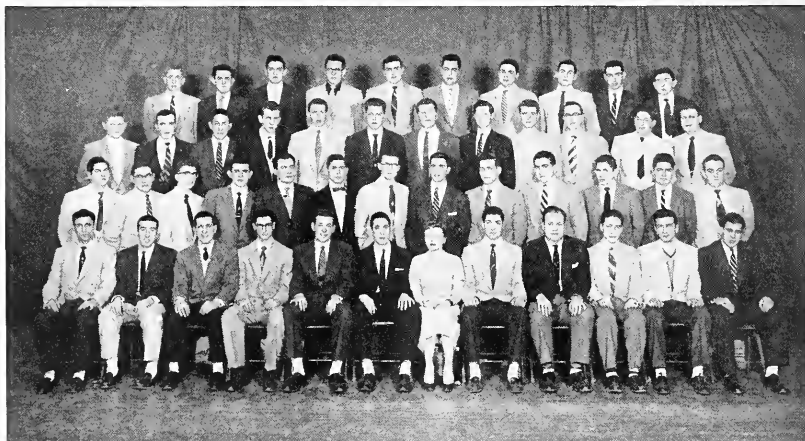

A fraternity with diversified interests, a fraternity that participates in intramural competition, a fraternity that has a full social and academic program is one of which Tau Epsilon Phi is proud.

TEP-men are active on the INDEX, Men's Judiciary, Collegian, W.M.U.A., Yahoo, the Band, Student Senate, football, lacrosse, basketball, and track teams.

Mrs. Edith Ulrich, the fraternity's new house mother, makes TEP a real home and not just a house. She was the hostess for such memorable fraternity social affairs as a tea in honor of President Mather, the Parents' Day Banquet, and the annual Hell Dance, Thug Dance, and Confederate Ball.

THETA CHI

The brothers of Theta Chi look back again at a very successful year both on campus and within their house. 1954-55 saw the addition of a large new wing to the fraternity house.

Prominent representation in campus activities and clubs—Adelphia, I.F.C., Maroon Key, Phi Kappa Phi, sports, Men's Judiciary, Roister Doisters, and class officers show the versatility of Theta Chis.

The social highlights of the year were the annual Sadie Hawkins Party, the popular Carnation and Bowery Balls.

The high degree of fraternity cooperation and friendship that permeated the academic and social life make this year a meaningful experience.

PHI MU DELTA

This school year found the men of Phi Mu Delta upholding their record of high scholarship and all-around participation in campus activities.

For the fall semester, a newly-redecorated and remodeled house was the center of the season's excellent motif parties—the annual Pago-Pago, Pledge Formal, Halloween Masquerade Ball, and Christmas party, to mention a few.

In keeping with an old tradition, those brothers who became pinned, engaged, or married had a special pond-side party with other fraternity brothers to celebrate their newly-acquired status.

To “the house with the open door,” 1954-55 will be remembered as successful in all phases of Greek life.

DEDICATION TO THE CLASS OF 1955

Personal and continuing trust and faith are the elements of dedication. This yearbook is a symbol of dedication. As an intimate record of the campus life of the class of 1955 and of the University community, the INDEX shows people living the educational life to which we are dedicated. My own inspiration, as I have been assigned the task of high office here, has come from you and the devoted effort you have shown as students.

In addition to the specific guidance or training you have received on this campus, it is my sincere hope that we have shared our common experiences in a way that will help you toward humility in your successes, constructive regret for your mistakes, and always a sanguine faith and joy in your own future, however humble or great it may be. Lasting greatness is a function of dedication to the selfless rather than the selfish life—of giving rather than getting. I hope that your university experience has given each of you sight for your souls as well as insight for your occupations.

In all that you do or will to do for the humanity of which you are a vital part we wish you well. We are proud to graduate you! We are content that you will forever justify this pride!

Adelpheia, the senior men's honor society, is composed of nine men who have exhibited outstanding qualities of leadership. They are tapped at the University Honors Convocation in the spring of their Junior year, at which time ten senior men are also recognized for their contributions to the University.

The nine Adelpheians began the year with many plans for promoting cooperation and leadership and, as the year wore on, proved again their service to the University as they brought the plans to fulfillment.

Adelpheia worked as a joint organization with Isogon for the first time this year. The cooperation resulted in all-round improvement in their activities.

The University can look with pride at the nine Adelpheians and thank them for their diligence which is certainly an asset to the campus.

ISOgon

Since its founding in 1940, Isogon has recognized a selected group of senior women who have shown leadership, excelled in scholarship and exhibited versatility in college life. The members of this honorary society are chosen at the end of their junior year at a traditional tapping ceremony which is one of the highlights of the spring University Honors' Convocation.

Iso-
gon's classification as a service organization is a modest indication of its work. A list of its activities is quantitatively impressive, but it is their qualitative execution that has earned Isogon its reputation as a dependable promoter in spirit and a hard working supporter of all worthwhile University projects.

A feature of this year was the close cooperation of Isogon and Adelphia. Early in the fall, they co-sponsored the rallies and rally dances, Homecoming Float Parade, and the motorcade to Harvard, adding materially to the spirit and success of the fall program.

The purpose of Isogon is to recognize Junior women for service already rendered and to further serve the University. Their ac-chievements are an inspiration to underclassmen.

A MESSAGE

For most of us, the past four years have constituted an interesting and enlightening experience. We have encountered what, to us, were the most difficult problems of the world. We have come in contact with men, who, through years of experience, training, and self discipline have been able to impart to us a portion of the knowledge which we need to enter a living world.

Many of us, in the years to come, will be attending graduate schools to further our search for this knowledge; others of us, will seek this knowledge through a new medium of business competition and personal experience.

Many of us began, four years ago, with an unlimited capacity for learning coupled with a certain degree of restraint toward the newness of advanced education and a narrow perspective filled with prejudice and dogma. We have all changed our perspectives many times in the past four years and it has been just this constant change that has given us a more mature perspective with which we may introduce ourselves to our new and ever-changing environment.

We must consider ourselves fortunate that we have spent four years in acquiring knowledge, criticizing concepts, and learning the languages of many worlds. Probably, no one of us questions the fact that these have been the most productive and influential years of our lives.

Within the covers of this yearbook are included many more things than just pictures and prose: within this book are people — men and women upon whose learning and experience part of the future of our country, and indeed, part of the future of the world depends.

Let us dedicate this year's INDEX to all classes of all colleges and universities; to all classes of all people; most of all, let us dedicate this book to the future.

I.N.N.

Standing: Judy Wolk, Flip Felipe
Seated: Buzz Johnson

The Great Divide has been passed. The long-awaited second half is upon us, for we are members of the junior class.

We are through with the required courses, the “you-must-take-this” and “you-must-take-that” of pre-registration. If we have been faithful, we have seen the last of the required gym classes. From now on it's up to us.

...and there's lots of pictures.

This stuff is delicious

But we do have a problem, and a big one. We must have a major (the book says so) and we must have one NOW.

So, bewildered and a little bit afraid, most of us ask, "WHAT?" Shall it be economics or government, history or English, chemishave advisors, we have parents. We know professors. While the final decision is up to us, we are not alone.

And so we begin. We think and test and ask. Then we think again. And in the end, the years of preparation and guidance pay off, for try or mathematics? We seem to be trapped in a maze. How can we know? How many shall we have to try?

Suddenly we remember that we

we decide. If we are lucky, we make the right choice.

Thus we continue to develop, to learn, to accept and to question. We are sure now, for we have found ourselves.

SOPHOMORES

As the sophomores return to school in September, they find that they have become the important half of the hazing duo. At long last they have the upper hand. Registration is a familiar thing to them. Not only do they know how to register, but they even know what to register for. And after their week of guiding the freshmen through their first experience of college life the sophomores return to their familiar studies and extracurricular activities.

Life takes on a broader scope for them. They now have three cuts per course and to their great joy they learn that the Dean's Office will not lower a course grade for overcutting. That Saturday English class may not be so bad! For the women later hours are a welcome blessing.

The sophomores not only have their choice of campus activities—

What, no blood???

Just for the week-end?

they assume places of leadership. They take charge of the Christmas Carol Sing and the Soph-Senior Hop. They are members of Maroon Key or Scrolls. The athletes of the class are on varsity teams now, and the whole University takes on a new meaning for the sophomore who now feels a real part of it.

The enthusiasm and exuberance of the sophomore are wonderful things to see. They enter into activities with a vim and vigor that make the other upper classes marvel. Nothing slows them down. No longer are they on the outside looking in! This is college—and they are sophomores—not freshmen with their fears or juniors with decisions to make or seniors who are beginning to suffer from nostalgia, but they are members of an active and carefree class.

They have at last found a "home" at the University, and feel a real reluctance to leave the campus when June comes around. Their horizons have broadened, and they look forward with heightened anticipation to the next year, when they will be juniors.

Drink hearty, mate!

SCROLLS

The new members are tapped for this Sophomore Honor Society, which bases its selection on leadership, service and personality, at the University Honors' Convocation in the spring. The fifteen Scrolls are well-known, not only to the Freshman women, who look to them for leadership and help through those first days in September, but also to the campus, for their outstanding work and significant contributions to college life.

The Scrolls and Maroon Key started out this September with a well-organized and interesting plan to welcome the freshmen and to make them feel a part of the campus. Cooperating with the W.A.A.'s Co-rec Sports program, Scrolls and Key sponsored a Freshman square dance, a picnic supper, and dances at the girls' dorms. Another highlight of orientation days was the big Interdormitory Sing and Talent Night when "New Dorm," Arnold House, carried off the honors in both events.

The assistance of the Scrolls at registration was the salvation of many bewildered freshmen. From the time the Scrolls arrived for the Student Leader's Conference, before the official opening of the fall semester, until late October, their first thought is helping the freshman co-eds to adjust themselves to a new community and a new way of life.

MAROON KEY

The primary purpose of the Maroon Key is promoting good sportsmanship and school spirit. The white caps with the maroon key are seen at every football game as the Key acts host to visiting athletic teams.

The Maroon Key, composed of twenty-five outstanding men of the Sophomore class tapped in the spring of their Freshman year, is always willing to step in and help wherever it is needed. Coordinating its plans with those of the Scrolls, the Maroon Key works diligently to acquaint the Freshmen with the campus, especially during the few days before the upperclassmen arrive in September. During Freshmen Week, it helps make the many Freshmen activities a success. The Maroon Key members are found along with the Scrolls trying to help the bewildered Freshmen through the confusion of registration.

The Key sets a good example in school spirit and can rightfully claim much of the credit for the success of countless school activities.

FRESHMEN

Standing: Young, Stebbins
Seated: Fernald, Lindquist

After months of tension and uncertainty, and a summer full of excitement and preparations, the recent high-school graduate is at last what he has dreamed of being — the college freshman. And as he enters into his college career a world of newness unfolds before him.

There are new faces and, as a result, new friends; there are new classes; new examination methods, new time schedules, new books, new teachers, and some discouraging standing in line. Hard as it may seem during the first few weeks, all of these new things must be met and understood and accepted by the college freshman.

But with all the bewilderment and uncertainty there is a bit of pride and glory, too. At last he is a part of a living, breathing private community. It is here that he will prepare to meet and conquer the world. It is here that his opinions and convictions will be molded.

Let's see now, $2H + O = ?$

The world is upside down

It is here that he will at last become a complete individual.

And while freshman trigonometry and English and speech and history may not seem to be a direct route to conquering the world, and eight o'clock classes may seem to be a big sacrifice for the privilege of forming opinions, the freshman begins to understand slowly that it must be that way.

As he understands and accepts, pride develops and he becomes more and more a part of the college community.

The newness becomes familiarity and mellows with age. What he enjoyed before because it was a novelty, he enjoys now because it has become a part of him. The astonishing conglomeration of professors, deans, housemothers and proctors takes on normal proportions. He accepts them as individuals and respects them as such. Upperclassmen lose their austerity and suddenly become members of the gang. Even courses which once seemed terrifying become challenges rather than threats.

It's a long way home.

And so the first year continues. To be sure, the freshman has not become the world-wise student. Many times again during the course of the year his inadequacy is felt keenly. He is confronted with problems and decisions which he is not quite ready to settle alone. But now he at least is sure of where to seek help. And he is capable of weighing advice and reaching a solution. Each time he does, his confidence grows and he demands respect both from himself and from others.

Sure you do!!

Now, watch what happens.

Soon the freshman finds that people seek his advice and he finds much to his astonishment that he is capable of giving it. As the year nears its end, he has become an expert for prospective college freshmen. He is the one to suggest courses and study methods and professors. He is the one who knows.

He has completed his metamorphosis. He has conquered a new world. Moreover, he himself has been conquered and captivated by the strange and wonderful freshman saga.

A Book To Be Treasured . . .

This annual is a permanent record, in picture and prose, of the academic year 1954-1955 at University of Massachusetts. Its value will increase as the years pass, and the quality of the printing will contribute in great measure to its lasting worth.

The Andover Press, Ltd., takes pride in its well-known craftsmanship which, combined with the long hours of careful planning and painstaking editorial work by the INDEX Staff, makes this a book to be treasured.
